

FOREWORD

The diversity of its people makes the United States a unique nation. However, when crimes are committed because of our differences, the effects can reverberate beyond a single person or group into an entire community, city, or society as a whole. These crimes, committed because of a bias against race, religion, disability, ethnicity, or sexual orientation, are not limited to cities of a particular size or a region of the country, but occur in communities of all sizes throughout the country. In an attempt to determine the scope and nature of hate crime, the Uniform Crime Reporting Program collects statistics on these incidents. However, data in publications such as Hate Crime Statistics are only a numerical representation that cannot measure the fear, pain, and suffering of victims.

Law enforcement agencies play a major role in informing the entire criminal justice system, researchers, academics, and the general public of hate crimes. The hate crime data collection program began with a sample of 11 states in 1990 and has grown to cover more than 12,000 agencies in 48 states that submit data covering 85 percent of the country. Without input from these agencies, this publication would be ineffective. Contributing law enforcement agencies should be commended for their efforts, and all law enforcement agencies are encouraged to participate. The program is not aimed at placing the towns or cities of participating agencies under a microscope, but rather to collect information on hate crimes. For once a problem is identified and acknowledged, only then is it possible to study, understand, and combat it.

The national Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program would like to hear from you.

The staff at the national UCR Program are continuously striving to improve our publications. We would appreciate it if the primary user of this publication would complete the evaluation form at the end of this book and either mail it to us at the indicated address or fax it to 304-625-5394.

INTRODUCTION

Background

With the passage of the Hate Crime Statistics Act of 1990, Congress mandated the collection of information about crimes motivated by a bias against a person's race, religion, sexual orientation, and/or ethnicity/national origin. Commissioned by the Attorney General and aided by several local and state law enforcement agencies already investigating and collecting information about hate crimes, the FBI's Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program developed a data collection system for that purpose. Hate Crime Statistics, 1990: A Resource Book was the first publication that made available the hate crime data collected in 1990 by 11 individual states. Once the national UCR Program implemented a uniform data collection method, the 1992 edition of Hate Crime Statistics premiered the data reported by law enforcement agencies across the Nation.

Bias against persons with disabilities became an element of hate crime data collection guidelines with the enactment of the Violent Crime and Law Enforcement Act of 1994, which amended the Hate Crime Statistics Act. (Actual collection of data from disability bias-motivated crimes began on January 1, 1997.) Another amendment followed in July 1996 when the Church Arson Prevention Act was signed into law, removing the sunset clause from the original statute and permanently extending the data collection mandate. The FBI shares its commitment to make hate crime data collection a permanent part of the UCR Program with each law enforcement agency that is a voluntary participant of the Program.

Collection Design

The goal of the Hate Crime Statistics Act and its subsequent amendments is to capture information about the type of bias serving as the motivating factor of a hate crime, the nature of the offense, and the number and types of the victim(s) and offender(s). While identifying the criteria that distinguish hate crimes from other offenses, the parties involved in the developmental phase of the Hate Crime Data Collection Program recognized that hate crimes are not separate, distinct crimes; instead, they are traditional offenses motivated by the offender's bias. An offender, for example, may damage or vandalize property because of his/her bias against the owner's (victim's) race, religion, sexual orientation, ethnicity/national origin, or disability. Therefore, rather than create new crime categories, Program developers decided that collecting additional information about crimes currently being reported to the UCR Program would fulfill the directives addressed in the Hate Crime Statistics Act as amended.

Because motivation is subjective, it is difficult to know with certainty whether a crime was the result of the offender's bias. Law enforcement investigation is imperative in that it must reveal sufficient evidence as to whether the offender's actions were motivated, in whole or in part, by bias. For this reason, the success of the Program rests with the local law enforcement agency's participation in reporting bias-motivated offenses so that this information can be forwarded to the state and subsequently to the national Program.

The International Association of Chiefs of Police, the National Sheriffs' Association, the former UCR Data Providers' Advisory Policy Board (now part of the Criminal Justice Information Services Advisory Policy Board), the International Association of Directors of Law Enforcement Standards and Training, and the Association of State Uniform Crime Reporting Programs have all endorsed the Hate Crime Data Collection Program. Without their support and law enforcement's voluntary data collection, any effort toward the successful implementation of the Program would be futile.

Participation

In 1999, nearly 17,000 law enforcement agencies nationwide reported data to the UCR Program. A total of 12,122 law enforcement agencies in 48 states and the District of Columbia submitted summary or incident-based reports to the Hate Crime Data Collection Program. The table below shows the number of agencies represented within each population group and the extent of the population covered. Of those participating agencies, most sent their data to their respective state UCR Programs (see Appendix) that forwarded the state's information to the national Program. Participating agencies in states without state UCR Programs sent their data directly to the FBI. Collectively, these agencies represented nearly 233 million people in the United States, approximately 85 percent of the population. Though the reports from these agencies are insufficient to allow valid national or regional measure of the volume and types of crimes motivated by hate, they offer perspectives on the general nature of hate crime occurrence.

Historically, the law enforcement community has recognized that valid information is central to developing effective measures to deal with crime; the same is true for bias-motivated crime. Through the collection of hate crime statistics at the local level, law enforcement agencies have the ability to heighten the awareness and the understanding of bias-motivated crimes both locally and nationwide.

METHODOLOGY

Data Reporting

In accordance with the Hate Crime Statistics Act and its subsequent amendments, the Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) Program compiles data regarding crimes motivated by racial, religious, disability, sexual-orientation, and ethnicity/national origin biases. City, county, and state law enforcement agencies may submit hate crime data to the UCR Program using the Quarterly Hate Crime Report Form or the hate crime data element for the National Incident-Based Reporting System (NIBRS). The Quarterly Hate Crime Report Form consists of a quarterly summary and an incident report for each bias-motivated incident. The form is typically used by agencies that report their data by using summary guidelines. Agencies participating in NIBRS are able to report an offender's bias motivation using the hate crime data element in their NIBRS submissions via magnetic tape. Individual agencies and state UCR Programs that use personal computers for data collection and storage may submit hate crime data on disks.

Data Collection

Criminal incidents can involve more than one offense, victim, and/or offender. For counting purposes, one offense is counted for each victim of a crime against person. One offense is counted for each distinct incident of crime against property and crime against society, regardless of the number of victims. The total number of victims in a given incident is the sum of victims associated with each offense that took place within the incident.

Hate crime data are collected for 11 offense categories. Murder and nonnegligent manslaughter, forcible rape, aggravated assault, simple assault, and intimidation are classified as crimes against persons. Robbery, burglary, larceny-theft, motor vehicle theft, arson, and destruction/damage/vandalism of property are classified as crimes against property.

In NIBRS, the hate crime data element applies to all 46 Group "A" Offenses, which include the previously mentioned 11 offense categories. The remaining 35 Group "A" Offenses not listed are reported in this publication as other or as crimes against society, whichever is appropriate.

Data Compilation

Once the UCR Program receives the data, they are compiled in tables and discussed in narrative comments that address the volume and types of bias-motivated criminal incidents. In particular, Section I provides various tabular presentations of the incidents reported to the FBI. It also addresses the specific offenses, types of victims, and any available offender information. Section II furnishes individual state and agency information. In this year's edition of Hate Crime Statistics, there is a notable difference in the presentation of individual agency listings in Tables 13 and 14. The new format details the number and types of bias motivations reported by those agencies that submitted actual incidents (Table 13) and lists separately those agencies that submitted a "zero report" (meaning the agency reported no bias-motivated crimes occurred in its jurisdiction) (Table 14).

Data Publication

To be included in this publication, law enforcement agencies must have submitted data for at least one month of the calendar year. Consequently, figures may or may not represent complete 12-month totals for any given agency. For that reason, and in consideration of the fact that many variables affect the volume and type of crime from place to place, data users should exercise caution in attempting direct comparison of hate crime totals among agencies.

SECTION I

Hate Crime Statistics, 1999

In 1999, a total of 12,122 law enforcement agencies in 48 states and the District of Columbia reported 7,876 bias-motivated criminal incidents to the FBI. The incidents consisted of 9,301 separate offenses, 9,802 victims, and 7,271 known distinguishable offenders. (See Table 1.) Of the 7,876 incidents, nearly 55 percent were motivated by racial bias, 18 percent by religious bias, 17 percent by sexual-orientation bias, 11 percent by ethnicity/national origin bias, and less than one-half of 1 percent by disability and multiple biases.

Offenses and Incidents

Nearly 67 percent of the 9,301 hate crime offenses reported in 1999 were attributed to crimes against persons. Crimes against property made up 33 percent of the total, and crimes against society composed less than one-half of 1 percent. (See Table 3.)

Intimidation was the most frequently reported hate crime; it accounted for 35 percent of the total. Destruction/damage/vandalism of property made up nearly 29 percent of the count; simple assault, 19 percent; and aggravated assault, 12 percent. The remaining offenses accounted for the other 5 percent. (See Table 3.)

For Hate Crime Data Collection Program purposes, the term single-bias incident refers to any hate crime incident in which all offenses involved in the incident were perpetrated as a result of the same bias motivation. A multiple-bias incident is any hate crime incident in which one or more of the offenses were committed as a result of two or more bias motivations. Of the 7,876 bias-motivated incidents, 7871 were single-bias incidents and 5 were multiple-bias incidents. (See Table 1.)

Of the 17 murders reported among hate-motivated incidents, racial bias motivated 9 of the murders; sexual-orientation bias and ethnicity/national origin bias each, 3; and religious bias, 2. (See Table 4.)

According to the data received for racially-motivated incidents, 2,030 of the 3,542 anti-black offenses involved white offenders, and 524 of the 970 anti-white offenses involved black offenders. (See Table 5.)

Victims

A breakdown by bias motivation shows that victims of racial bias accounted for nearly 56 percent of all hate crime victims in 1999. Victims of religious bias comprised 17 percent of the victim total; victims of sexual-orientation bias, 16 percent; victims of ethnicity/national-origin bias, 11 percent; and victims of disability bias, less than one-half of 1 percent. By specific bias motivation, anti-black bias accounted for 67 percent of victims of racial bias; anti-Jewish bias accounted for 76 percent of victims of religious bias; anti-male homosexual bias accounted for 69 percent of those who were victims of sexual-orientation-bias crimes; anti-Hispanic bias made up more than 57 percent of the victim total for ethnicity/national origin bias; and anti-physical disability bias accounted for over 57 percent of victims of disability-biased crimes. (See Table 1.)

Among victim classifications, crimes against persons represented 63 percent of the 9,802 hate crime victims; crimes against property, nearly 37 percent; and crimes against society, less than one-half of 1 percent. (See Table 3.)

The term victim throughout this publication refers to a person, business, institution, or society as a whole, unless otherwise specified. Eighty-three percent of the 9,802 reported hate crime victims were individuals. Distribution figures for the remaining victim types were other/unknown/multiple, 6 percent; society/public, 4 percent; business/financial institution, 3 percent; government, 2 percent; and religious organization, 2 percent. (See Table 7.)

Offenders

For Hate Crime Data Collection Program purposes, the term known offender does not imply that the identity of the suspect is known, but only that an attribute of the suspect is identified which distinguishes him/her from an unknown offender. Typically, the attribute referred to in this publication is the offender's suspected race.

In 1999, a total of 7,271 known offenders were associated with 59 percent of the 7,876 incidents reported by law enforcement. By offender's race, 68 percent were white, 16 percent were black, 4 percent were multiracial, 2 percent were Asian/Pacific Islander, 1 percent were American Indian/Alaskan Native, and 9 percent were unknown. (See Table 11.)

Historically, offenders are identified in conjunction with crimes against persons more often than with crimes against property. Of the 7,593 known offenders who were counted for the 9,301 offenses in 1999, 80 percent were reported in connection with crimes against persons; intimidation was the most frequently committed offense. Nineteen percent of the known offenders were associated with crimes against property; destruction/damage/vandalism was the most perpetrated crime in this category. The offenses among crimes against persons and crimes against property with which offenders were least associated were forcible rape and motor vehicle theft, respectively. The remaining 1 percent of the known offenders committed crimes against society. (See Table 3.)

Locations

In 1999, the highest percent of reported hate crime incidents, nearly 29 percent, occurred in/on residential properties. Incidents committed on highways/roads/alleys/streets accounted for almost 19 percent, 16 percent took place in other/unknown locations, and 10 percent occurred at schools and colleges. The remaining 26 percent of incidents were widely distributed among various locations. (See Table 2.)

SECTION II

Jurisdictional Hate Crime Statistics, 1999

Fifteen percent of the 12,122 law enforcement agencies that provided 1 to 12 months of data to the FBI's Hate Crime Program reported that at least one hate crime occurred in their jurisdiction during 1999. The remaining 85 percent of participating agencies reported that no instances of hate crime occurred.

Table 12 supplies individual state totals for the number of participating agencies, the populations represented, the number of agencies submitting incident reports, and the number of incidents reported.

Unlike previous years' publications, in this year's edition Table 13 includes those agencies that submitted one or more hate crime incidents and Table 14, those that submitted reports indicating no instances of hate crime occurred. Both tabular presentations are by state with each state subdivided by agencies within cities, universities and colleges, suburban counties, rural counties, state police agencies, and other agencies when applicable.

As stated previously, many variables not considered in this publication can affect the volume and type of crime from place to place. For this reason and because these figures do not represent 12-month totals for every agency listed, data users are cautioned against making direct comparisons among agencies.
