Remarks by the President at Staff Inaugural Ball

Washington Convention Center
Washington, D.C.

9:00 P.M. EST

THE PRESIDENT: Hello, everybody! (Applause.) You all clean up pretty good. (Applause.) You are looking good.

Couple of acknowledgements I want to make -- first of all, please give it up for DJ Mel Sandico. (Applause.) The U.S. Army Band is in the house. (Applause.) We're so proud -- they can play anything -- anything. Go ahead and make a request, they'll play it. They are outstanding. And we are so grateful for their service to our country each and every day.

Now, this is just a little gathering, little party among friends. (Applause.) Represented here are our outstanding OFA staff and volunteers. (Applause.) Our amazing PIC -- that would be Presidential Inaugural Committee Team. (Applause.)

MRS. OBAMA: This has been a great inauguration. They've done a great job.

THE PRESIDENT: Michelle just said this has been a great inauguration, and you've done a great job.

We've got the DNC convention team that did an amazing job. (Applause.) We've got the DNC team that did an amazing job. (Applause.) And we've got the White House team, which is pretty good. (Applause.) They did an amazing job.

AUDIENCE MEMBER: And you!

THE PRESIDENT: I'm here, too. (Applause.) That's true. And the First Lady of the United States -- (applause) -- bangs and all -- (applause) -- looking very sparkly and twinkly. (Laughter.)

Now, I'm not going to speak long, mainly because I've been speaking a lot and you all have heard me before.

MRS. OBAMA: And the entertainment is pretty good.

THE PRESIDENT: And, more importantly, we've got a couple of people who are pretty good musicians named Lady Gaga and Tony Bennett in the house. (Applause.) This is like my -- Michelle is like doing interpretive dance of everything I say. It's been a long weekend -- she's getting a little silly now. (Laughter.)

But my main job here tonight is real simple, and it's just to say thank you. (Applause.) You know, some of you were involved the very first time I ran, back in 2007, 2008. (Applause.) Some of you were 14 at the time, and so just got involved this time out. (Applause.) You know who you are. (Applause.)

MRS. OBAMA: That's right.

THE PRESIDENT: But regardless of whether you got involved six years ago or you got involved six months ago, what is true is that all of you have come to represent for me and Michelle our deepest hopes for America.

The average age here is probably around 20-something -- (applause) -- and that's only because I'm here, which

President Obama Announces Additional Humanitarian Aid for the Syrian People

President Obama announced today that he has approved a new round of humanitarian assistance, an additional $155 million to provide for the urgent and pressing needs of civilians in Syria and refugees forced to flee the violence of the Assad regime. This brings America's contribution to date to $365 million, making the United States the largest single donor of humanitarian assistance to the Syrian people.

brings the average age up quite a bit. But when I think about traveling around the country during the course of the campaign and getting to know some of you and meeting some of you and seeing the work you do in the White House or the work that you did during the convention, and I meet young people who are so much smarter and more thoughtful and more caring about the future than I ever was at your age, so much more capable, so much more serious, so much more poised, it makes me know that America's future is in good hands. (Applause.)

As long as all of you understand the immense and incredible power that you possess when you work together, when you join voices, when you extend yourselves not just on behalf of your own ambitions but on behalf of a larger cause, you cannot be stopped. And part of the reason I know that America will succeed is when I look at how you work together, what I saw in offices from Vegas -- (applause) -- to Richmond -- (applause) -- to Colorado Springs -- (applause) -- to Manchester, New Hampshire -- (applause) -- to Orlando, Florida -- it didn't matter -- (applause) -- it didn't matter where I was, I'd walk into a volunteer office and what you saw was people from every walk of life -- black, white, Hispanic, Asian, Native American, young, gay, straight -- it didn't matter where you came from, you came together with a mission in mind and a vision in mind. And you were willing to set aside whatever surface differences you had because you understood you were working on behalf of an America that was a little more just and a little more fair and a little more compassionate, and better stewards for our environment. (Applause.)

And seeing that kind of spirit operate day in, day out, no matter how hard the work, no matter how little you got paid, no matter how bad your candidate screwed up, it didn't matter, you just kept on going. And there were times during the course of this year where I might have gotten down, but you picked me back up. (Applause.) You lifted me up on your shoulders. And you said, yeah, we know he's gotten kind of old and gray-haired, and we know sometimes he stumbles. But we are going to carry him across the finish line. (Applause.) Because this is not about him; this is about us. This is about America. This is about what we believe. This is about what our values are. (Applause.) This is what our ideals are all about. We are going to go out there and change America. (Applause.)

That's what you did every single day. And so this weekend belonged to you. (Applause.) To you. (Applause.)

So my final message -- because I'm already breaking my promise; I said I wasn't going to talk long -- is to say that you can't stop now. I know some of you have got to go back to school. I know some of your parents are all like, okay, you did your little thing, but now you've got to go back and get your degree. I know some of you've got some rent to pay, so you've got to --

MRS. OBAMA: Some loans.

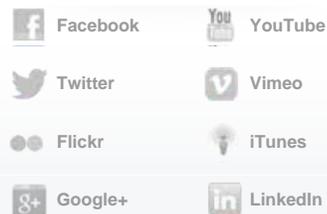

THE PRESIDENT: -- get some loans to repay. You may be making a whole range of career choices and decisions right now. And, look, not all of you will end up staying in politics. Not all of you will end up pursuing professionally public service. But every single one of you, in your communities, in your neighborhoods, in your workplaces, wherever you decide to put down roots, wherever you decide to make a difference, as long as you retain that spirit that you've shown during the course of these campaigns -- the idea that you're a citizen, that America only works when you make it work -- (applause) -- that you have the power to move this country and, as a consequence, the world -- if you retain that sense and never lose it, then I tell you, not only is America going to be in good hands, but what's going to happen is you're going to influence your peers and your friends and the folks you live next to and your neighbors and people in your workplace. And suddenly, like Robert Kennedy described, you're like a stone thrown in a pool and it starts rippling out. And you don't know where those ripples are going to go, and that's the future that I see for you.

I know that every single person here donated $10 to a memorial on behalf of Alex Okrent Memorial. (Applause.) And Alex was one of you -- this incredibly thoughtful, talented, compassionate, caring young person who decided to get involved because he thought he could make a difference. And tragically, he ended up leaving us while working in the campaign -- some of the people here were there when it happened. And it was heartbreaking, and it reminded us of how precious our time on this Earth is.

We don't have a lot of time. I know when you're young it seems like it goes on forever. It turns out things are fragile. And yet, the thing that outlives each of us is what we do for somebody else, what difference did we make. And we know Alex made a difference. (Applause.) And so his impact outlives him. And that means -- that's all right -- somebody is over there and they probably fainted because they've been standing too long. Many of you have been at rallies -- there's one over here, we've got EMS folks here. People, bend your knees while you're here. (Laughter.) And try to get hydrated as well.

MRS. OBAMA: You know you've got to drink some water!

THE PRESIDENT: Drink water is what I mean. (Laughter.) Juice is okay, too. (Laughter.)

But in the same way that Alex left this indelible mark on my life and Michelle's life, and many of your lives, you will leave an indelible mark as well, as long as you decide that you're going to spend your life giving something back.

You've already given me an incredible gift. You've given America an incredible gift. Don't stop. Keep on going. (Applause.) Don't stop. Stay fired up. (Applause.)

Are you fired up?

AUDIENCE: Fired up!

THE PRESIDENT: Are you ready to go?

AUDIENCE: Ready to go!

THE PRESIDENT: Fired up!

AUDIENCE: Fired up!

THE PRESIDENT: Ready to go?

AUDIENCE: Ready to go!

THE PRESIDENT: Fired up!

AUDIENCE: Fired up!

THE PRESIDENT: Ready to go!

AUDIENCE: Ready to go!

THE PRESIDENT: Fired up!

AUDIENCE: Fired up!

THE PRESIDENT: Ready to go.

AUDIENCE: Ready to go!

THE PRESIDENT: I think Lady Gaga is fired up, too.

God bless you, guys! (Applause.) I love you! Thank you! God bless you. God bless the United States of America. (Applause.)
