

INTELLIGENCE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR
2021

OCTOBER 30, 2020.—Committed to the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union and ordered to be printed

Mr. SCHIFF, from the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, submitted the following

R E P O R T

together with

MINORITY VIEWS

[To accompany H.R. 7856]

The Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, to whom was referred the bill (H.R. 7856) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2021 for intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the United States Government, the Community Management Account, and the Central Intelligence Agency Retirement and Disability System, and for other purposes, having considered the same, reports favorably thereon without amendment and recommends that the bill do pass.

PURPOSE

The purpose of H.R. 7856, the Intelligence Authorization Act for Fiscal Year (FY) 2021 (the Act), is to authorize funding for the activities of the 17 elements comprising the U.S. Intelligence Community (the IC).

COMPLIANCE WITH CLASSIFIED SCHEDULE OF AUTHORIZATIONS AND WITH UNCLASSIFIED AND CLASSIFIED COMMITTEE DIRECTION

Because most of the intelligence budget involves classified programs, the bulk of the Committee's explanatory and directive language for each fiscal year is found in the classified annex accompanying the bill. The classified annex also includes the classified schedule of authorizations as well as explanatory and directive language.

The classified schedule of authorizations is incorporated directly into the legislation by Section 102 of the bill. The Executive Branch shall strictly comply with all Committee direction and other guidance set forth in this report and in the classified annex.

The classified annex and classified schedule of authorizations shall be made available for review by all Members of the House of Representatives, on conditions set by the Committee at the time of its approval of H.R. 7856.

SCOPE OF COMMITTEE REVIEW

The bill authorizes U.S. intelligence and intelligence-related activities within the jurisdiction of the Committee, including the National Intelligence Program (NIP) and the Military Intelligence Program (MIP), the Homeland Security Intelligence Program (HSIP), and the Information Systems Security Program (ISSP). The NIP consists of all activities of the Office of the Director of National Intelligence (ODNI), as well as intelligence, counterintelligence and related activities conducted by: the Central Intelligence Agency; the Department of Defense, including the Defense Intelligence Agency, the National Security Agency, the National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency, the National Reconnaissance Office, and certain activities of the Departments of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps; the Department of Energy; the Department of Justice, including the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Drug Enforcement Administration; the Department of Homeland Security, including the U.S. Coast Guard and intelligence elements of DHS; Department of State; and the Department of the Treasury. The Committee has exclusive or concurrent jurisdiction of these activities—and exclusive jurisdiction to study the sources and methods of the IC.

COMMITTEE VIEWS

H.R. 7856 ensures the IC has the resources needed to compete against the Nation's strategic adversaries—like a rising China and a revanchist Russia. It invests in next-generation technologies, like artificial intelligence and high-performance computing, and promotes educational partnerships with academic institutions to increase STEM talent and diversity throughout the national security community.

The Committee also has sought to focus IC and public attention on non-traditional threats, like climate change and global pandemics. In that regard the bill makes permanent the Office of the Director of National Intelligence's Climate Security Advisory Council, which assists elements of the IC that analyze the security impacts of climate change. H.R. 7856 also mandates an annual Worldwide Threat Briefing to Congress; requires a National Intelligence Estimate on the threat of global pandemics; makes permanent an annual requirement for the IC to report on emerging infectious diseases; and directs a study on creating an advisory council on global health threats. National security threats are increasingly diffuse, and we must take address what we are seeing every single day—from the devastating wildfires affecting the West, to hurricanes battering the Gulf coast, to the COVID-19 pandemic that has killed over 200,000 Americans.

H.R. 7856 also prioritizes the protection of civil liberties and human rights, at home and abroad. To that end, the bill imposes limitations and transparency requirements on intelligence support to domestic law enforcement responding to protests or civil disturbances. It requires a report on the People’s Republic of China’s intervention in Hong Kong. The legislation also reaffirms an unmet statutory requirement for the IC to produce an unclassified report on the murder of U.S. resident and journalist, Jamal Khashoggi; and discontinues intelligence support to the Saudi-led coalition’s campaign in Yemen.

We conclude with some observations about our Minority colleagues’ opposition to the bill. We believe the Committee’s Minority members voted “no” because a handful of the IAA’s provisions are intended to address abuses related to the Intelligence Community and election security, which were committed by or involved President Trump or his allies. Our counterparts in the Minority do not seriously dispute that such incidents took place. Yet legislating to prevent them from recurring, in their view and that of the Trump Administration, is a “partisan” act requiring firm opposition.

The provisions in question advance good-government principles about which, until now, Republicans and Democrats had agreed for years. Had we proposed such provisions during any other presidency, they almost certainly would have been endorsed without reservation by all the Committee’s members, for inclusion in the IAA. We hope the Minority has a change of heart and decides to support H.R. 7856 during its consideration on the floor of the House.

COMMITTEE VIEWS REGARDING CHINA

China has used the past two decades to transform itself into a nation potentially capable of supplanting the United States as the leading power in the world. Its ascendance has been spectacular in scale and far less benign than initially expected. That has required special efforts by the U.S. Government and the U.S. Intelligence Community. Accordingly, the Committee in 2019 commenced a “deep dive”, intended to examine the IC’s China activities comprehensively. The Committee intends to issue a report containing its findings and recommendations before the end of the 116th Congress; in the meantime, H.R. 7856 contains provisions developed during the Committee’s study.

These proposals in part respond to the speed and nature of China’s rise—which caught the West off guard. During the 1990s and 2000s the consensus in the West was that, as China became more prosperous and developed, it would also eventually liberalize at home and play a constructive role in its relations abroad. Observers convinced themselves that, among other things, leadership in Beijing had learned the “right” lessons from the reaction to the Tiananmen Square crackdown in 1989—and therefore would chart a reformist course. Confidence in that view was central to the decisions to admit China to the World Trade Organization and to award the 2008 Summer Olympics to Beijing.

The last decade has shown those expectations to have been deeply misplaced. Belief in the inevitability of democratic liberalism blinded Western policymakers to the Chinese Communist Party’s overriding objective: seizing more and more power. In the interim, the People's Republic of China has increasingly sought to revise the international order in a way that furthers its own strategic interests and undermines those of the United States and other nations. Beijing has sought to expand its economic and political influence through its "One Belt, One Road" Initiative and the large-scale cooption of media outlets throughout the world. Militarily, China has embarked on a massive modernization drive—creating a "blue water" navy, investing heavily in hypersonic weapons, developing its own fifth-generation fighter, militarizing a series of atolls and islets in the South China Sea to strengthen its claims in the region, and building its first overseas military base in Djibouti.

Perhaps most consequential of all, China has invested—and continues to invest—great resources, technology, and political will into the creation of a post-modern authoritarian state. The country's people are monitored around the clock through their phones and an ever-growing network of surveillance cameras equipped with facial-recognition technology. Initially fueled by stolen U.S. technology and intellectual property, these advances are now increasingly driven by Chinese innovation. Beijing's expanding technological prowess will enable the Chinese Communist Party to improve its ability to watch, and therefore control, China's population. This "digital authoritarianism" has not only been deployed at home but has also been increasingly marketed to aspiring authoritarians abroad.

Its authoritarianism is hardly the only threat emanating from China. The emergence in 2019 of a novel coronavirus in Wuhan also demonstrated the profound dangers posed by a transnational health crisis originating within China's borders. By seeking to preserve its domestic political stability and international image—in lieu of fostering a transparent and effective approach to public health—China has placed the United States, our allies, and the world at risk. China's public response has been to obfuscate the Chinese Communist Party's role in the crisis, through the calculated promotion of fringe conspiracy theories and misinformation. The latter seek to shift blame to the United States, muddy the truth about the virus's origins, and promote the image of China as a responsible global leader. To date, the coronavirus has infected at least 31 million people and resulted in over 962,000 deaths worldwide, of which the United States has over 203,000.

The confluence of the widespread, if not yet fully understood, global impact of COVID-19, the prolonged, excessive allocation of American intelligence resources to counterterrorism, China's emergence as a global competitor, and other transnational events make this an urgent moment to assess the Nation's intelligence posture towards China; and to provide strategic guidance to the IC as it repositions itself to better understand China's domestic environment, capabilities, plans, and intentions.

To that end, the Committee undertook its "deep dive" which sought to comprehensively review the IC's posture vis-à-vis China. The Committee sought to assess the IC's ability to execute, with respect to China, its core mission of "collecting, analyzing, and delivering foreign intelligence and counterintelligence" to America's leaders so they can make sound decisions. In support of this charge, staff reviewed thousands of analytic assessments, spent hundreds of hours with IC officers, and visited facilities operated by over a dozen IC elements. The goals of the Committee's review were to: (1) assess the IC's performance within the six phases of the so-called "intelligence cycle"; (2) provide recommendations to increase the quality of raw intelligence reports and finished analytic products; and (3) assess the adequacy of current IC resource levels.

The Committee's central finding is that the IC has not sufficiently adapted to a changing geopolitical and technological environment increasingly shaped by a rising China and the growing importance of interlocking non-military transnational threats, such as global health, economic security, and climate change. Absent a significant realignment of resources, the U.S. government and intelligence community will fail to achieve the outcomes required to enable continued U.S. competition with China on the global stage for decades to come, and to protect the U.S. health and security. This year's bill seeks to address some of those resource challenges.

COMMITTEE VIEWS REGARDING THE MIDDLE EAST AND SOUTH ASIA

Even as the United States prioritizes meeting the unique challenges posed by China and Russia, it continues to confront a range of national security challenges in the Middle East and South Asia. The IC will continue to play an important role in addressing them.

At the same time, efforts by two successive Administrations to end the conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan have led the United States to seek deeper partnerships with various regional actors, especially the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia (KSA) and the United Arab Emirates (UAE). Notwithstanding greater U.S. engagement and offers of cooperation, both countries since 2017 have pursued policies that are at odds with U.S. regional objectives—which complicate efforts at greater intelligence and security cooperation. In fact, Riyadh and Abu Dhabi went so far as to participate in a blockade of Qatar, an important U.S. partner which hosts crucial U.S. military facilities and is supporting U.S. efforts to achieve a political settlement of the war in Afghanistan.

To this end, the bill includes several provisions drafted to address some of the diplomatic, military, and economic issues at the heart of the U.S.-KSA and U.S.-UAE relationships.

It directly addresses, for example, the disastrous Saudi-led military campaign in Yemen. Now in its fifth year, the war in Yemen has created new safe havens for international terrorists, provided new opportunities for Iranian meddling in the Gulf, and contributed to the creation of the worst man-made humanitarian catastrophe in the world. The Committee is concerned that the Administration's decision to bypass Congress in May 2019 and sell additional arms to both Saudi Arabia and the UAE will only exacerbate this crisis and undercut U.S. security interests. Moreover, the Committee is disturbed by the findings of the State Department Office of the Inspector General, issued in August 2020, that the Administration authorized weapons sales to Saudi Arabia and the UAE without conducting a required assessment of the potential for these sales to contribute to civilian harm. This failure compounds the Committee's longstanding concern that the Administration is ignoring and withholding from Congress credible evidence that the Saudi-led Coalition has engaged in repeated violations of the law of armed conflict, including by bombing civilians and civilian objects in Yemen.

Accordingly, the bill as approved by the Committee insists that the Intelligence Community share this information with the American people and Congress, so as to fully inform future decision-making on arms sales and ongoing Congressional investigations of whether executive branch officials violated any relevant laws and procedures when authorizing such sales to Saudi Arabia and the UAE. In addition, the bill requires that the United States cease intelligence sharing with Saudi Arabia for the purpose of supporting the Saudi-led coalition's campaign against the Houthis in Yemen.

The past year also saw a resumption of Saudi-linked terrorist attacks on American citizens, when in December 2019 a Saudi military officer with significant ties to al-Qaeda killed three American servicemembers and wounded eight other individuals. This was the first successful foreign terrorist attack on U.S. soil since Saudi and Emirati citizens perpetrated the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks. Saudi and Saudi-inspired individuals have been responsible for the overwhelming number of foreign terrorist attacks against Americans over the past two decades.

With that in mind, the Committee is concerned by reports that the Saudi government is not cooperating fully with the U.S. investigation into the Pensacola attack and supports the Department of Justice's ongoing effort to fully investigate and ensure accountability for the attack. The Committee also questions the Department of Defense's June 2020 decision to resume its training of Saudi military students in the United States following only a brief review of the shortcomings in U.S. vetting procedures, and in light of indications that Saudi Arabia has not taken significant additional steps in cooperation with the United States to enhance inadequate vetting procedures. Furthermore, the Committee is concerned that the Kingdom has not taken sufficient steps to curb the propagation of extremist ideologies that inspire terrorist attacks against U.S. citizens and has directed the Intelligence Community to provide a report on this matter. Relatedly, the Committee is troubled by the Administration's continued reluctance to make available to Congress and families of the September 11 victims additional details regarding the role of Saudi nationals in those attacks. The Committee urges the Department of Justice to fully cooperate with Congressional requests and reach an accommodation for providing this long-requested information in a timely manner.

While the Administration has focused on undermining the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA) with Iran, which had effectively constrained Iran's nuclear weapons ambitions, public reporting indicates that Saudi Arabia is developing a nuclear fuel cycle that some experts assess has no obvious purpose other than to support a clandestine nuclear weapons program. Saudi officials have previously said they want to enrich uranium domestically. Despite being a member of the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty (NPT), the Kingdom has refused to conclude an Additional Protocol and Saudi Arabia's crown prince has publicly stated a willingness to acquire nuclear weapons "as soon as possible" if Iran were to develop a nuclear weapon. Any clandestine Saudi push for a nuclear weapon would have grave implications U.S. interests, to include the security of U.S. partners, such as Israel, and the broader region.

In that vein, the Committee-passed bill directs the Intelligence Community to provide a detailed report assessing Saudi Arabia's undeclared nuclear activities, as well as a clear-eyed assessment of the Kingdom's willingness to forswear a domestic enrichment capability and abide by the same "gold standard" that the United States wisely required of the UAE. Given the urgency of the issue, the Committee would urge the Intelligence Community to dedicate additional resources to scrutinizing Saudi Arabia's nuclear activities. The Committee also reaffirms Congress' longstanding view that the United States shall not conclude any civil nuclear cooperation agreements with Saudi Arabia that do not include robust safeguards and nonproliferation provisions, to include a strict prohibition against uranium enrichment.

In the economic sphere, Saudi Arabia's leadership undercut U.S. national security in March 2020 by pursuing an ill-conceived oil price war with Russia. The Committee is troubled by public reporting indicating that the United States lacked advanced warning of Saudi Arabia's actions, which collapsed global energy markets and contributed to a loss of tens of thousands of American jobs. The Committee hopes that in light of such tumult, the Intelligence Community would dedicate additional resources to scrutinizing Saudi Arabia's energy policy decisions.

Separately, the Committee is concerned that the UAE has moved aggressively to expand economic and technological cooperation with both Russia and China, including in the defense sphere. This appears to have contributed to a decision by the Trump Administration to send a team to UAE in August 2020 to discuss the UAE relationship with China. Notwithstanding the potential for the UAE to share sensitive U.S. defense technology and systems with America's adversaries, the Administration has reportedly indicated a willingness to transfer to the UAE the most advanced armed and unarmed U.S. defense systems. Because of the proliferation risks and unresolved concerns about technology transfer, the Committee objects to these transfers, some of which violate and undermine the Missile Technology Control Regime. The Committee-passed bill also directs the Intelligence Community to provide a report on UAE's defense activities with China, Russia, and other peer competitors—especially with regard to unmanned aerial vehicle systems (UAVs)—and believes the Intelligence Community's assessment of the technology transfer concerns must be a factor in future decisions to transfer or not transfer these systems to the UAE.

U.S. efforts to strengthen security and intelligence cooperation with Saudi Arabia and UAE also are undermined by both countries' human rights abuses and efforts in recent years to undermine inclusive, democratic governments in the region. Of great concern, Saudi Arabia has failed to hold accountable the Saudi officials responsible for the brutal murder of U.S. resident and journalist Jamal Khashoggi. Equally troubling, the Office of the Director of National Intelligence has not provided Congress an unclassified report detailing Saudi officials' culpability for the killing, as explicitly required by the law. The Office of the Director of National Intelligence has withheld this report despite a growing abundance of publicly available information, and even as it has justified the declassification of other documents requested by the President's supporters in Congress that appear to reveal sensitive U.S. intelligence sources. This apparent effort to abuse the classification process for political purposes and blatant contravention of a law supported by nearly every Member of Congress is unacceptable. The Committee has therefore been left with no choice but to direct, in the bill, the suspension of certain activities with Saudi Arabia if and until the Office of the Director of National Intelligence complies with the law and provides the unclassified report, as specified under the law.

Finally, public reporting in recent years, meanwhile, has detailed the role of UAE personnel in allegedly torturing detainees captured in Yemen, as well as efforts by entities affiliated with the Emirati government to utilize former U.S. intelligence personnel and technologies to surveil political activists. These UAE activities are not consistent with U.S. values or national security interests. They contrast with the UAE's claims to be an open society that shares U.S. values of tolerance and respect for human rights. The Committee-passed legislation therefore directs changes to U.S. regulations and laws aimed at helping to ensure that former U.S. Intelligence Community personnel do not inadvertently aid or abet efforts by the UAE or any other country to violate the human rights and privacy of Americans or any other citizens.

UNCLASSIFIED COMMITTEE DIRECTION

Diversity and Inclusion

Significantly increasing diversity and inclusion within the IC is vital to the protection of U.S. national security. It thus long has been, and continues to be, a mission-critical priority for the Committee.

While the Committee acknowledges the marginal increase in overall representation of minorities, women, and Persons with Disabilities (PWD) in the IC, such groups are scarcely represented at pay grades above GS/GG-13, the full performance marker. At the Senior Executive Service (SES) and Senior Intelligence Service (SIS) pay levels, minorities are practically non-existent. Only a handful of individuals from diverse backgrounds occupy the top positions across the 17 IC elements. And the percentage of individuals from diverse backgrounds in the IC lags woefully behind that within other departments of the federal government, as well as the private sector.

Seeking to address such challenges, the IC has taken various steps: conducting early outreach; expanding authorities for grants to and partnerships with academic organizations from the elementary school through the collegiate levels; holding regional IC-wide recruitment events and virtual career fairs; implementing a cloud-based platform; as well as accelerating impactful security clearance reform. Senior leaders across the IC also have committed to buttressing retention, promotion, employee resource groups, and accountability programs.

Despite these efforts, the statistics continue to be bleak. Among other things:

- White males make up 84% of the IC's SIS and SES positions, despite making up 70% of the top leadership positions in the civilian labor force;

- The number of minorities and women serving as managers and supervisors within the IC has decreased from 2017 to 2019;
- Minority departures from the IC steadily have increased from 2016 to 2019;
- PWD departures from the IC increased in 2019, despite significant decreases since 2016.

Like the rest of the government, the IC must do far better. It is imperative that the IC hire, retain, and promote diverse candidates, including those with experience and expertise in Science, Technology, Engineering, Arts and Mathematics (STEAM) fields; in analysis; and in foreign languages necessary to successful prosecution of the IC's mission.

Therefore, the Committee directs that, by no later than April 30, 2021, the Director of National Intelligence shall brief the Committee on the IC's 2020 Annual Demographics Report. Such briefing shall, like the Report itself, include the expanded reporting categories mandated by the FY2020 Intelligence Authorization Act.

Further, the Committee directs that the ODNI submit to the Intelligence Committees by June 30, 2021 a written report outlining the findings and variables that affect the IC demographics noted above, including an attachment listing the incumbents of the top three positions by IC element and demographic categories.

Finally, the Committee directs the Director of National Intelligence, by no later than June 30, 2021, to complete a comprehensive review of promotions for calendar year 2020—broken down by gender, race, PWD, grade, career category, and tenure in both grade and in the federal government.

Emerging Technologies

This Committee remains dedicated to ensuring that the Intelligence Community (IC) has the resources and authorities necessary to maintain the United States' leadership in scientific and technological discovery. Therefore, the Committee directs that, no later than June 1, 2021, the ODNI, in coordination with all relevant agencies of the IC, provide to the Committee a written report that, at a minimum:

1. Proposes a plan for improved engagement with the private sector and academic institutions;
2. Proposes a plan to launch a three-year pilot of the Public-Private Talent Exchange, and annual reports to the congressional intelligence committees on progress of the pilot program;
3. Assesses the viability of a fellowship program for recent graduates of science, technology, engineering, and mathematics programs to work in the IC for a limited period of time;
4. Identifies each IC element's use of Other Transaction Authority in the previous three fiscal years;
5. Identifies any gaps or limitations in the ability of the IC to interact with academic institutions;
6. Addresses the sufficiency of the IC's relationships with the Federally Funded Research and Development Centers, and in particular with respect to strategic management and coordination among relevant IC elements which participate in the Department of Energy's Strategic Intelligence Partnership Program, to support the IC's scientific and technological research and development priorities;

7. Identifies existing areas of collaboration with foreign intelligence partners on scientific and technological research and development activities, and identifying areas for growth and any limitations preventing further collaboration;

8. Proposes a plan to improve remote and telework opportunities for the IC workforce, and specifically to make such opportunities available to individuals who have accepted an offer of employment but have not completed the security clearance process; and

9. Assesses the viability of creating an advisory board modeled after the Defense Intelligence Board.

Report to Congress on Release of Medical Records of Guantanamo Bay Detainees

The Committee is concerned that the medical records of the forty (40) remaining detainees at Guantanamo Bay Naval Station are not being made available to the detainees or their representatives in sufficient scope or a timely fashion, including because the Executive Branch takes the position that some of the information in the records is properly classified under Executive Order 13526. The Committee is particularly concerned about claims, including by the Center for Victims of Torture and Physicians for Human Rights, that "medical needs [of detainees] are subordinated to security functions." It is important that complete medical information be made available to detainees and their representatives in a timely fashion in a way that protects any legitimately classified information.

Therefore, in order to assist its oversight of the classification of medical records, the Committee directs that the Under Secretary of Defense for Intelligence and Security, in consultation with the Director of National Intelligence and with such heads of elements of the Intelligence Community that the Director deems appropriate, and by not later than June 1, 2021, shall submit to the Committee a comprehensive written report on the handling, dissemination, and release of Guantanamo detainee medical records.

The report shall include, at a minimum:

1. A list of every method that a Guantanamo Bay detainee or his representative can use to request that (a) medical records be provided to the detainee or his representatives and (b) full and complete medical records be provided to the detainee or his representatives;

2. A detailed discussion of the purposes for which medical records can be released to the detainee or his representatives, including use in litigation, to inform independent medical assessments of the detainee unrelated to litigation, to enable a detainee's representatives to advocate for more effective medical care, or any other purpose;

3. Lists of (a) which of the above purposes would allow for a detainee to receive full and complete medical records, and in each case for which purposes full and complete records were provided and (b) detainees who have been provided full and complete medical records, and in each case for which purposes full and complete records were provided;

4. The number of detainees who have been provided with full and complete copies of their medical records;

5. A description of how long each process for record review takes from start to finish and potential changes that could speed up the process;

6. A step-by-step description of the process for review of detainee medical records for production to the detainee or his representatives in habeas corpus litigation;

7. A step-by-step description of the process for review of detainee medical records for production to the detainee or his representatives in military commission litigation;

8. A step-by-step description of the process for review of detainee medical records for production to the detainee or his representatives pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act;

9. A step-by-step description of the process for review of detainee medical records for production to the detainee or his representatives as part of the Periodic Review process established pursuant to Executive Order 13567;

10. A step-by-step description of the process for review of detainee medical records for production to the detainee or his representatives pursuant to any other process that could result in the provision of such records to the detainee or his representatives;

11. The risks and benefits of creating a separate process by which a detainee or his representatives can request medical records for the purpose of advocating for more effective medical and psychological care of the detainee during his continued detention;

12. A description of every basis for withholding information pursuant to any of the processes described in items 4–8, including classification, Controlled Unclassified Information, executive privilege, or force protection; and

13. A list of every category of classified information used to redact information from medical records, including an identification of which agency ‘owns’ the information redacted pursuant to the category.

Any step-by-step description shall include identification of who may make the request pursuant to the process, how the request is made (and to whom), a description of how records are gathered for processing, a description of each step that the records make along the way to a final releasable product (including the agency conducting the review, the specific office tasked with the review, the type of information that that office is tasked with redacting from the records), a description of who receives the records at the conclusion of the process, a description of any controls on further dissemination that the records are subject to at the end of the process, and a flow chart or other graphical depiction of the process from start to finish.

The report shall be unclassified, but may include a classified annex.

Under Secretary of Defense for Intelligence and Security Program Management

The Committee supports the Under Secretary of Defense for Intelligence and Security (USD(I&S)) performing a limited program management or incubation role for programs which may provide unique value to the Defense Intelligence and Security Enterprises. However, there is apparently limited guidance as to how or when a program may be managed by USD(I&S) or shifted to another DOD component to manage.

Therefore, the Committee directs the USD(I&S), by no later than May 27, 2021, to submit to the Committee a written plan for transitioning the management of all current programs to an appropriate DOD component within 24 months of such report's submission; to the extent USD(I&S) may wish to continue to manage a particular program, the report shall provide the committees with a justification for why its continued management of the program is warranted. The written plan should also set forth criteria that USD(I&S) will use going forward, in determining whether to manage future programs.

IC/CSA Framework

Fiscal Year 2018 National Defense Authorization Act and corresponding Intelligence Authorization Act directed the USD(I&S) and ODNI to create a framework to more effectively manage elements of the IC that are also Combat Support Agencies (CSAs).

While the Committee strongly supports the GAMECHANGER tool and is encouraged by its promising capabilities—which include enabling interagency lexicon, policy reconciliation and streamlining policy development—this tool alone does not fulfill the FY 2018 direction to create a framework for managing IC elements that are also CSAs.

The Committee is particularly interested in the validation and refinement of such a framework; identification of any necessary amendments to existing policies and relevant processes, authorities, command and control constructs; and the definitions underpinning the framework. Finally, the reconciliation of variances in the definitions used by the DOD and/or IC is a significant and important component of the 1626 direction and goes to the very core of congressional intent for the provision.

Therefore, the Committee directs the USD(I&S) and ODNI to present to the congressional intelligence and defense committees, by no later than March 15, 2021, a written plan of action and milestones for complete implementation of Section 1626 of the FY 2018 NDAA.

ISR Transfer Fund

The Committee is generally supportive of the flexibility provided within the Intelligence Surveillance and Reconnaissance Transfer Fund (ISR TF) and appreciated engagement by USDI&S based on previous direction in the IAA for FY 2018, 2019, and 2020. However, the Committee strongly believes that funding provided in the ISR transfer fund should be used to bolster Department of Defense ISR capabilities that directly support the National Defense Strategy.

Therefore, the Committee directs that USD(I&S) prioritize funding which may be made available from the ISR TF to accelerate or facilitate projects, platforms, and capabilities aligned with service or department strategy documents directly or indirectly supporting the National Defense Strategy.

Defense Intelligence Analysis Program (DIAP) Staffing Levels

The Committee supports the Department of Defense's ongoing efforts to shift its focus from counterterrorism and other missions to those involving near-peer adversaries, including China and Russia. However, many of the Defense Intelligence Enterprise's (DIE) structures remain optimized for counterterrorism and have not sufficiently adapted to reflect the Department's change in emphasis. The Committee is particularly interested in staffing levels within the Defense Intelligence Analysis Program (DIAP).

Therefore, the Committee directs the USD(I&S), in coordination with the Director of the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA), to conduct a review of the DIAP's level of effort, expressed in terms of Full Time Equivalents (FTEs), both at DIA headquarters and at Combatant Commands. USD(I&S) shall brief the Committee by no later than November 1, 2021 on the results of this review. Such briefing shall include, at a minimum, USD(I&S)'s recommendations to balance analytic level-of-effort against the Department's current requirements, and the steps USD(I&S) intends to take within fiscal year 2022 to more effectively align FTEs against Department requirements, particularly with respect to those regarding China and Russia.

Hypersonic Aircraft

Congress has long expressed concern about the threats posed by hypersonic weapons and the imperative for the United States of rapidly developing offensive and defensive hypersonic weapons systems. The Fiscal Year 2020 Department of Defense Appropriations Conference Report includes $100,000,000 to establish a Joint Hypersonics Transition Office, and to develop and implement a roadmap for hypersonics. Further, the report accompanying H.R. 2968, the House-passed Department of Defense Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2020, included language encouraging Air Force research into reusable hypersonic propulsion technologies including high Mach turbines.

The Committee is also aware of ongoing private sector efforts, independently and in partnership with federal agencies and departments, to develop aircraft capable of flying at speeds even beyond Mach 5. These aircraft have the potential to enhance the IC's and the Defense Intelligence Enterprise's intelligence, surveillance, and reconnaissance capabilities.

Therefore, the Committee directs the USD(I&S), in coordination with the Secretary of the Air Force and the Director of National Intelligence and by no later than March 21, 2021, to brief the Committee on:

1. The capability gaps that high Mach and hypersonic aircraft can fill;
2. An acquisition strategy for such capabilities; and
3. An overview of the roles and responsibilities for this strategy.

U.S. INDOPACOM China Strategic Initiative

The Department of Defense has sought to prioritize preparing for the current and future threats posed by near-peer adversaries, including the People's Republic of China, in the Defense Wide Review and associated planning efforts. The Committee is extremely supportive of the Department's efforts to more effectively analyze and predict Chinese decision-making.

The China Strategic Initiative is an effort within the Department that seeks to inform and broaden the Department's understanding of China. This program intends to provide a rigorous, thoughtful study of the strategic environment. The Committee notes that the Department will likely continue to benefit from such thoughtful analyses, which should in turn lead to more informed and judicious decision-making.

Therefore, the Committee directs the Department to analyze requested funding levels for the China Strategic Initiative across the future years defense program and to resource the program at a level commensurate with the value that the program provides to the Department.

ARMY

Army Foreign Language Training

In 2015, the military services agreed that linguists would meet a 2+/2+ reading and listening standard before graduating from the Defense Language Institute Foreign Language Course (DLIFLC). This will enable support to both Service-derived and National Security Agency language requirements. Despite this commitment, the Army has been met with a number of limiting factors and may not meet the 2+/2+ graduation standard by the Army's goal of Fiscal Year 2023.

Since 2016 the Army also has not met its recruitment and retention goals for the Cryptologic Linguist and Human Intelligence Collector specialties. While the Army has taken steps to improve recruiting and retention of soldiers with necessary foreign language skills, challenges persist—including an inability to assess language proficiency easily, as well as security clearance investigation and processing delays.

1. Therefore, the Committee directs the Secretary of the Army to complete a formal doctrine, organization, training, materiel, leadership, education, personnel, facilities, and policy assessment to evaluate:

2. The language training requirements for its Cryptologic Linguist and Human Intelligence Collector specialties; and

3. The Total Army Language Program's current and anticipated requirements to support language-dependent Soldiers upon their graduation from DLIFLC.

4. Additionally, the Army shall provide a report to the intelligence committees on the ability for the Army to meet the 2+/2+ standard requirement by Fiscal Year 2023. The report should include major limiting factors inhibiting the Army from meeting the 2+/2+ requirement, mitigation measures (including budget implications) or a determination recommending a change to the requirement by fiscal year 2023.

Finally, the Committee directs the Secretary of the Army to conduct a study by May 2021 to identify methods other than the Defense Language Aptitude Battery to determine a Soldier's language aptitude.

Army Tactical SIGINT Payload

Since 2011, the Army has attempted to develop a pod, the Tactical SIGINT Payload (TSP), capable of meeting documented SIGINT collection requirements for counterinsurgency environments. While initial developmental test results may have warranted a low rate initial production decision, subsequent operational test failures indicated that TSP could not meet the program's original requirements. Consequently, the Army reallocated TSP funds to other priorities. The Army then conducted forward operational assessments in 2017 and 2019 which demonstrated some limited operational utility in counterinsurgency environments and informed the decision to transition the TSP program of record to a Quick Reaction Capability (QRC) in support of Combatant Command (CCMD) counterinsurgency requirements.

The Committee supports the Army's decision to transition the TSP program to a QRC. However, the Committee is concerned the Army has not allocated resources necessary to ensure that a TSP pod can support emergent CCMD requirements. The Committee is also concerned that the Army failed to partner with the National Security Agency (NSA) before finalizing the TSP requirements and developing a materiel solution.

Therefore, the Committee directs the Secretary of the Army, by no later than January 27, 2021, to provide to the Committee a written report regarding the TSP and its successor, the Multi-Domain Sensor System (MDSS). The report shall address, at a minimum, how the MDSS will utilize a suite of SIGINT sensors to meet Army requirements; and set forth a plan for the Army to partner closely with the NSA on SIGINT solutions for the future, consistent with the requirements of 10 U.S.C 2337.

Military Intelligence Readiness Reporting

The Army assesses intelligence readiness at the strategic and tactical levels in accordance with DoD Force Readiness Reporting requirements (CJCSI 3401.02B), and in different ways—including through monthly, quarterly and annual reviews and assessments by the Army G2 and the G2 Staff. Through such efforts, the Army is better able to track trends, highlight deficiencies, enable the efficient application of resources, and mitigate risk.

As part of its authorized jurisdiction and responsibilities under House Rule X, clause 11(b)(1), the Committee oversees the intelligence, intelligence-related, and tactical intelligence activities of all Departments and agencies of the U.S. government, to include those of the Department of Defense. That mandate encompasses the Department's intelligence readiness and related capabilities.

Therefore, the Committee directs the Senior Intelligence Officer of the Army to provide to the Committee, by no later than March 27, 2021, a written report outlining the readiness of the Army personnel engaged in intelligence, intelligence-related, or tactical intelligence activities. This report shall include, at a minimum:

1. An overview of how the Army evaluates, in quantitative, qualitative and any other applicable terms, the readiness of its intelligence capabilities;
2. An assessment of whether Army intelligence organizations and personnel are meeting readiness objectives, including those regarding readiness to [enable/engage in] multi-domain operations; and

3. An overview of how the Army has aligned its intelligence forces' joint or mission-essential tasks lists with the most recent National Defense Strategy priorities, to include an increased focus on great power competition with China and Russia.

NAVY

Navy Cable Ship Repair Replacement T-ARC(X)

The Navy's only cable laying and repair ship, the T-ARC 7 (USNS ZEUS), is nearing the end of its extended service life. The USNS Zeus maintains primary missions to transport, deploy, retrieve, and repair submarine cables and test underwater sound devices, and is a key component of the Integrated Undersea Surveillance System (IUSS).

A Maritime Surveillance System Capacity Study completed in January 2017 determined that the program workload for cable laying ships doubled in the last decade and will double again soon. A single cable ship cannot continue to meet the demands placed upon it, and project workload, system growth, and additional systems exceed capacity. The Navy is capable of bridging capacity gaps in the short term, but a long-term solution and prioritization is necessary.

Therefore, the Committee directs, first, that the Navy shall not retire the USNS ZEUS until the vessel's material condition degrades beyond economic repair or the capability and capacity currently provided by ZEUS is met or exceeded. The Secretary of the Navy should prioritize the resources needed to meet the current two cable ship requirement.

Additionally, The Navy shall submit to the Committee by no later than February 1, 2021 a written report regarding the USNS ZEUS which shall contain, at a minimum: (1) forecasting data regarding when the USNS ZEUS's material condition may degrade beyond economic repairs; and (2) a plan regarding the future of cable laying capacity managed by the Navy.

MQ-4C Triton Multi-Intelligence Fleet

The Navy's MQ-4C Triton unmanned aerial system provides persistent maritime intelligence, surveillance, and reconnaissance (ISR) capability. The Committee strongly supports the program's Multi-Intelligence (Multi-INT) configuration. MQ-4C Multi-INT is integral to the recapitalization of the Navy's maritime patrol and reconnaissance force (P-3C and EP-3E). These capabilities are especially critical given the Navy's increased focus on the vast Indo-Pacific theater. Accordingly, the Committee is concerned about the production pause in the MQ-4C Triton included in the Fiscal Year 2021 budget and its potential adverse impact on operational capabilities, suppliers, and program costs.

Therefore, the Committee directs the Secretary of the Navy to submit to the Committee, by no later than February 1, 2021, a written report regarding plans for fielding the MQ-4C Triton's Multi-INT capability as soon as possible, and on the impact of the FY21 budget to the program. Such report shall include:

1. A reaffirmation of the Navy's commitment to Multi-INT and a detailed description on how it plans to achieve Triton Multi-INT Initial Operational Capability (IOC) in FY 2022;

2. A description of the Multi-INT capability, system architecture, tasking, collection, processing, exploitation, and dissemination (TCPED) processes and infrastructure required to support operations;

3. The Navy's Maritime Intelligence Surveillance Reconnaissance and Targeting (MISR&T) Plan detailing how the Navy plans to build, deploy, and support world-wide MQ-4C Triton Multi-INT system deployments; and

4. The impact of a production pause on the MQ-4C Triton's industrial base, program costs, and any mission gaps may create.

Navy ONI Infrastructure

The Office of Naval Intelligence (ONI) is the leading provider of global maritime intelligence for the U.S. Navy and other national IC organizations. It is headquartered in Suitland, Maryland and employs approximately 3,000 military, civilian, mobilized reservists and contractor personnel worldwide. ONI also has the support of more than 800 Navy Reservists providing an equivalent of 90+ man-years of production during weekend drill and active duty periods.

The National Maritime Intelligence Center (NMIC), which houses ONI, was designed and built with National Intelligence Program funds and completed in 1993. Yet the aging building and its surrounding structures badly need infrastructure upgrades.

Therefore, the Committee directs the Naval District Washington, by no later than February 19, 2021, to brief the Committee on any necessary infrastructure improvements for ONI/NMIC over the future years defense plan.

AIR FORCE

Future of the U2 Dragon Lady

The Committee has long supported the U2 Dragon Lady Aircraft and supported the Air Force as it seeks to utilize the aircraft in support of the National Defense Strategy.

Therefore, the Committee directs the Air Force to prioritize future sensor capability for the U2 Dragon Lady. Further, the Committee directs the Air Force A2/6 to notify the Committee of any significant challenges to future ISR employment, including basing or sensor development.

Advanced Battle Management Family of Systems

The Advanced Battle Management System (ABMS) aims to be a cross-service next generation system-of-systems, which fill fuse global air and space intelligence, surveillance, and reconnaissance information, and replace the command and control capabilities of aging legacy systems. The Committee is supportive of ABMS and pleased with the engagement and responsiveness from the Air Force on this issue.

However, the Committee is concerned by the unclear scope of the Air Force's ABMS requirements. Furthermore, the Committee is aware of several instances of large technological acquisition programs failing to properly build security requirements into planning early and throughout the process. The National Security Agency (NSA) is the U.S. Government's lead on cybersecurity issues, with the most informed and current analysis of adversaries' technical activities and capabilities. Given the sensitive nature of the intelligence information that will act as the backbone of ABMS, it is vital that ABMS use only the most secure tools and technology—and benefit from NSA's expertise.

Therefore, the Committee directs that, no later than January 27, 2021, the Assistant Secretary of the Air Force for Acquisition, Technology and Logistics brief the committee on the Air Force's plan to:

1. Consult with the NSA on minimum security standards, and build these recommendations into the requirements for ABMS;
2. Vet technologies to ensure that they meet such standards; and
3. Engage with the NSA post-development to ensure proper security procedures in the use of tools that utilize intelligence information.

RC-26 Platform Review

The Committee supports the Department of Defense's efforts to implement a routine process for assessing which programs it includes within, or removes from, the Military Intelligence Program (MIP) portfolio. The Air Force does not currently consider the National Guard's RC-26 aircraft an intelligence platform despite its ability to conduct surveillance and reconnaissance operations. The Committee is concerned the Air Force has not included a platform that shares many of the features found in intelligence aircraft within its MIP portfolio.

Therefore, the Committee directs the Under Secretary of Defense for Intelligence and Security (USD(I&S)), in consultation with the Secretary of the Air Force and the Chief of the National Guard Bureau, to review the appropriateness of including the RC-26 aircraft within the MIP portfolio. The Committee further directs the USD(I&S) to brief the Committee on the results of this review by no later than March 28, 2021.

MARINE CORPS

Marine Unmanned Expeditionary Aircraft

The report accompanying H.R. 3494, the House-passed Intelligence Authorization Act (IAA) for Fiscal Years 2020, 2019, and 2018, among other things required the U.S. Marine Corps to provide a briefing on the Marine Unmanned Expeditionary Aircraft (MUX). Although the Marine Corps provided the briefing, the current requirements, development production, and deployment of group 4 and group 5 unmanned aerial systems remains unclear.

Therefore, the Committee directs the Marine Corps to submit to the Committee, by no later than February 27, 2021, a written report regarding the MUX. It shall contain, at a minimum, an updated summary of doctrine, organization, training, materiel, leadership, personnel and facilities (DOTMILPF), as well as an Analysis of Alternatives.

U.S. SPECIAL OPERATIONS COMMAND

SOF Intelligence Training Annex

Once completed, the Special Operations Command's Special Operations Forces (SOF) Intelligence Training Annex (the Annex), at Ft. Bragg, North Carolina, will provide the 1st Special Warfare Training Group (Airborne) a facility where it can provide its forces with critically important training in advanced intelligence techniques.

The Annex was funded initially in 2016. But construction has not been finished, and the project has since required additional funds. A second construction contract, with a cost of approximately $15 million, will have to be awarded in order to conclude the project. Absent this infusion of needed resources—and the Annex's completion—the Group will have to conduct training in undersized, leased facilities. These will require significant infrastructure improvement to meet mission requirements.

Therefore, the Committee directs an increase of $17,000,000 above the Fiscal Year 2021 budget request for the completion of the SOF Intel Training Annex.

Special Operations Forces in Indo-Pacific

The Committee recognizes the sustained contributions of Special Operations Forces in the Indo-Pacific area of responsibility, as well as the roles and responsibilities the 353rd Special Operations Group.

The Committee is concerned with the current level of base infrastructure support, and the availability of intelligence and classified facilities available to the 320th Special Tactics Squadron (STS). The Committee strongly supports construction of a new STS operations facility, as part of the consolidation of SOF facilities at Kadena Air Base, Japan. The project should include all necessary and classified storage and working facilities.

Therefore, the Committee directs the United States Special Operations Command and Air Force Special Operations Command to consider their respective military construction priorities in light of emerging intelligence challenges from near-peer competitors in the Indo-Pacific area of responsibility. Particular consideration should be given to the construction of a new STS operations facility as part of the consolidation at Kadena Air Base.

U-28 Platform Modifications

The fiscal year 2021 budget request includes funding for unique modifications to U-28 aircraft for United States Special Operations Command (USSOCOM). Currently, USSOCOM is using fiscal year 2019 and 2020 funds to upgrade certain U-28 aircraft to the EQ+ configuration—which will enable extended stand-off operations and enhance the U-28's ISR capability.

The Committee strongly supports USSOCOM's U-28 modification and upgrade program and expects that the platform will provide operational capability into the 2040s.

USSOCOM should request in its Fiscal Year 2022 budget sufficient resources to accelerate U-28 modifications and standardize the EQ+ configuration across the U-28 fleet. It should also resist potential courses of action inconsistent with this approach, to include the replacement of the U-28 with an inferior or dissimilar aircraft.

Therefore, the Committee directs USSOCOM to provide to the Committee, by no later than January 27, 2021, a written strategy to preserve national mission force ISR capability, through continued sustainment of and upgrades to the U-28 platform.

NATIONAL RECONNAISSANCE OFFICE

National Reconnaissance Office (NRO) Interaction with Socially and Economically Disadvantaged Businesses and Minority Serving Institutions

The Committee is supportive of the NRO's desire to build an organization that embodies diversity and inclusion. The Committee believes these efforts should include increasing the NRO's outreach to socially and economically disadvantaged businesses and minority serving institutions. The Committee, however, is concerned the NRO has not appropriately prioritized its relationship with these entities.

Therefore, the Committee directs the NRO to brief the Committee, by no later than April 15, 2021, on its plan to increase engagement with socially and economically disadvantaged businesses and minority serving academic institutions. This plan should include an assessment of the resources required to accomplish this plan.

The Committee also directs the NRO to provide to the Committee, by no later than February 10, 2021, a written list of all contracts awarded to economically and socially disadvantaged businesses in the prior year.

The National Reconnaissance Office's Role within the IC

The NRO is an integral component of the IC. Since its inception in 1961, the NRO has faithfully supported national, strategic, and tactical customers. The NRO's unique workforce and organizational culture have ensured that the IC and warfighters maintain an information advantage over the nation's adversaries.

While the Committee is supportive of the Department of Defense's (DOD) creation of U.S. Space Command and U.S. Space Force, it believes the NRO must maintain its independence. Therefore, the Committee directs the NRO, U.S. Space Command, U.S. Space Force, and the IC Space Executive to brief the Committee no later than January 30, 2021 on:

1. The DOD and IC's requirement to inform the congressional intelligence committees before initiating the transfer of elements or functions between the Space Force and NRO;
2. The policies and procedures that govern IC-DOD coordination of appropriate element or functional transfers between the Space Force and NRO;
3. How the IC and DOD will ensure the NRO remains an independent organization; and

4. How the IC and DOD will coordinate their space-based activities during peacetime and conflict.

Data Centers as a Service

The Committee is aware the NRO is continuing to refine its data center requirements. The Committee is supportive of any efforts that allow the NRO to leverage commercial capabilities where appropriate and whenever possible. Therefore, the Committee directs the NRO, by no later than March 31, 2021, to brief the Committee on:

1. Any efforts to develop data center requirements that include:
 - a. service contract approaches;
 - b. facilities with access to renewable energy;
 - c. the location of facilities outside of major metropolitan areas;
 - d. facilities' access to multiple cloud providers;
 - e. leveraging commercial providers that are wholly-US owned, operated, and supported; or
 - f. the ability to support Top Secret collateral and compartmented data; and
2. The use of other transaction authorities to award service contracts that deliver immediate data center capacity.

Comptroller General Review of NRO Commercial Systems Program Office

The Committee believes the NRO's Commercial System Program Office's (CSPO) efforts as part of the GEOINT directorate have provided tremendous value to the IC, DOD, and other customers. CSPO has allowed the NRO to enhance both the resiliency and capacity of its hybrid architecture. However, the Committee is concerned the CSPO may not be optimally located within the NRO to shape budget priorities.

Therefore, the Committee directs the Comptroller General of the United States to submit to the Committee a written report, which shall, at a minimum:

1. Describe the process the NRO uses to determine its organizational structure and the CSPO's size, location, and requirements;
2. Evaluate the extent to which the NRO's process met best practices for such analyses;
3. Evaluate the utility of elevating the CSPO to an independent directorate within the NRO;
4. Evaluate the NRO's efforts to integrate commercial capabilities into a hybrid architecture;
5. Evaluate the NRO's statutory requirements to maximize the use of commercially available services and capabilities; and
6. Provide recommendations, including to improve processes, authorities, or adjust resources to match NRO, IC, or DOD requirements.

The Committee will confer with the Comptroller General regarding a timeline for the report's completion and submission to the Committee. However, the Comptroller General shall brief the Committee on its preliminary findings by no later than March 31, 2021.

SPACE-RELATED

Comptroller General Review of National Space Defense Center

Situational awareness is fundamental to conducting operations in space—but maintaining it is increasingly difficult. The space domain is increasingly complex and contested. And no one U.S. department or agency holds all the authorities and capabilities necessary to achieve comprehensive situational awareness. Effective execution will require unity of effort.

The National Space Defense Center (the Center) represents a potential focus of integration and coordination. The Center was established to improve the ability of the U.S. government to rapidly detect, warn of, characterize, attribute, and defend against threats vital to U.S. space systems. One of the Center's key responsibilities is to maintain and distribute an integrated common operational picture of the space domain. However, over the years the Committee has observed that the Center and its predecessor organization encountered challenges in effectively integrating information from disparate sources.

Therefore, the Committee directs the Comptroller General of the United States to provide the Committee with a written report regarding the National Space Defense Center's space situational needs. This Comptroller General's review should address, a minimum, the extent to which the Center has:

1. Identified challenges to effective and timely integration of space situational awareness information and taken steps to mitigate those challenges;
2. Issued guidance to define roles and responsibilities, established policies and procedures to operate across agency boundaries, and promoted other collaborative measures to better integrate and share space situational awareness information;
3. Coordinated with relevant IC organizations and military services to develop and implement effective and timely acquisition approaches for integrating situational awareness information that may reside at various security classification levels;
4. Developed a plan to utilize best practices from other governmental entities and the private sector to refine its acquisition strategy or develop space situational awareness requirements;
5. Developed a transition plan for the adoption of any materiel solution that integrates data from new applications and legacy capabilities; and
6. Planned for new capabilities and the corresponding resources, to include funding and cost-share implications.

The Committee will confer with the Comptroller General regarding a timeline for the report's completion and submission to the committees. However, the Comptroller General shall brief the Committee on its preliminary findings by no later than March 31, 2021.

The Committee expects that the IC and DOD will fully cooperate with the Comptroller General, by promptly providing the Comptroller General with access to all necessary documents and other relevant information, to include all pertinent budgetary and funding data.

Intelligence Community and Space Situational Awareness

Space situational awareness requirements are currently being filled by the Department of Defense, IC elements, other government agencies, and, increasingly, commercial providers. While mission partners in the IC can contribute to the decision calculus about the impact of actions resulting from a maneuver necessitated by a conjunction assessment, various mission partners make different contributions to this decision.

Therefore, the Committee directs the Directors of National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency, the Director of the National Reconnaissance Office, the Commander of U.S. Space Command, and the Chief of Operations of the Space Force, by no later than February 1, 2021, to brief the Committee on the current contributions the National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency and the National Reconnaissance Office make to operational decisions regarding the necessity to maneuver national technical means given a potential conjunction assessment, and the coordination among the agencies, Space Command and Space Force, in peacetime, in crisis, and during a conflict.

U.S. Space Industrial Base Support

Since 2009, the NRO, the Department of the Air Force, the Missile Defense Agency, and the Office of the Secretary of Defense for Acquisition and Sustainment have addressed supply chain risks through the Space Industrial Base Working Group (SIBWG). This working group allows the IC and DOD to make investments that support the health of the U.S. space industrial base. In light of the ongoing pandemic, the Committee believes SIBWG participants should increase their contributions to the investment fund. Without additional support, the U.S. space industrial base may become inappropriately reliant upon foreign manufacturers.

Therefore, the Committee recommends that all SIBWG participants increase their contributions for three years beginning in FY21. The classified annex to this report contains additional direction for the NRO on this subject.

Lunar Geospatial Intelligence and Situational Awareness

The Committee is concerned with the growing number of cislunar and lunar surface missions near peers have accomplished and continue to explore.

Therefore, the Committee directs the Director of National Intelligence, by no later than March 31, 2021, to brief the Committee on Chinese and Russian cislunar and lunar activity. The briefing shall include:

1. An assessment of China's and Russia's military, intelligence, economic, and research activities; and
2. An overview of China's and Russia's cislunar and lunar surface strategic goals through 2030.

NATIONAL GEOSPATIAL-INTELLIGENCE AGENCY

Metrics for Modern Best Practices in NGA Software Programs

Modern best practices for software development are essential for NGA to modernize and innovate. The Committee supports NGA's attempts, particularly through the office of CIO-T, to adopt such practices. However, this adoption is uneven across NGA's different software programs, with some lagging greatly behind others.

Metrics such as lead time, deployment frequency, time to restore, change fail percentage, and availability can help with assessing software programs' adherence to best practices and more accurately predicting their future success or failure. Additionally, in a sufficiently modern software development environment, the collection of such information can be largely or entirely automated, helping to minimize costs.

Therefore, the Committee directs the Chief Information Officer of the National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency to provide to the Committee, by no later than March 1, 2021, a written report assessing the feasibility of tracking metrics on all new major software programs' adherence to modern best practices for software development. The report shall include, at a minimum:

1. A recommendation on what set of metrics for software programs' adherence to modern best practices for software development would be most applicable to the mission and operations of the NGA;
2. A discussion of any barriers preventing the automatic collection such metrics across NGA; and
3. A discussion of resources required to track such metrics on all of NGA's major new software programs.

Advancing NGA Product Management and Software Design

The Committee supports NGA's Data Corps and Dev Corps programs to increase its native data science and software engineering talent and to increase the adoption of best practices within NGA. However, the Committee is concerned that NGA has not sufficiently expanded these efforts to other areas critical to successful software development outcomes, especially in the career fields of product management and user-experience design.

Therefore, the Committee directs NGA, by January 15, 2021, to brief the Committee on NGA's plans to adopt best practices in product management and user-experience design and to increase NGA's native talent in these areas.

Further, the Committee directs NGA, by April 1, 2021, to provide the Committee with an implementation plan for a training program to educate NGA product managers, as well as others who would benefit within NGA, in industry best practices for software product management. The plan should outline any additional resources necessary to carry out such a program and describe further recommendations for how NGA can develop product management as a core competency and career field within the organization.

Diversity and Next NGA West

The Committee remains strongly supportive of the construction of NGA's new Next NGA West (N2W) facility in St. Louis, Missouri. The Committee believes that the project should facilitate and be accompanied by greater interaction between NGA and the surrounding St. Louis community. NGA also should redouble its efforts to recruit, retain, and promote a diverse workforce both in St. Louis and nationally; and take continued, concrete steps to address its historical issues with diversity, such as those flagged in the 2018 report, "The State of Black Promotions at NGA."

Therefore, the Committee directs NGA to brief the Committee, by no later than March 1, 2021, on NGA's current and planned activities to:

1. Increase the recruitment, hiring, retention, and promotion of underrepresented groups, including in the St. Louis area;
2. Ensure equal treatment and access to pay, retention, and promotion; and
3. Use N2W as a means for greater interaction with the local St. Louis community.

IT System Recapitalization

The Committee is concerned that NGA's aging information technology (IT) infrastructure is holding back NGA operations and does not support critical user capabilities including the visualization, analysis, and operational use of three-dimensional (3D) data.

Therefore, the Committee directs NGA to provide the Committee with its plan to recapitalize its aging IT systems over the Future Years Defense Program (FYDP), as well as how this recapitalization will enable capabilities for 3D data.

Unclassified Requirements for Additional Phenomenologies

The Committee commends NGA for its work in developing the unclassified requirements for electro-optical (EO) in support of users worldwide. The Committee would also like to see this expand to include additional phenomenologies and synthetic aperture radar (SAR) in particular.

Therefore, the Committee directs NGA to develop unclassified requirements for SAR and provide to the Committee by February 1, 2021 the proposed timeline and resources necessary to achieve these requirements. NGA shall also brief the Committee by that date on how it plans to take advantage of other unclassified phenomenologies to include radio-frequency mapping, hyperspectral, and LiDAR.

Timely & Unclassified Imagery Analysis

The Committee commends the expansion of NGA's Global Enhanced GEOINT Delivery (G-EGD) service, which enables worldwide access to timely, unclassified, and shareable imagery to warfighters, other federal agencies, and foreign partners. However, this expansion coincided with a reduction in the commercial imagery and imagery analysis budgets for both NRO and NGA due to ODNI's "other IC priorities." The Committee opposes this reduction and is concerned that in the future NGA's funding for commercial services may again be sacrificed in favor of other IC priorities.

Each year, new commercial constellations are delivering new capabilities and phenomenologies both in the United States and internationally. These new capabilities are diffusing access to geospatial intelligence beyond the United States, but they also offer the U.S. government new opportunities to collect and share unclassified information in support of U.S. national security.

The Committee is encouraged by NGA's proactive and diligent market surveys of commercial capabilities and wants to see a corresponding increase in funding to take advantage of emerging unclassified opportunities.

Therefore, the committee recommends that NGA's commercial imagery, services, and analysis budget be increased to leverage this expanding marketplace and new phenomenologies. There is a corresponding authorization in the classified annex.

Countering the Malicious Use of Unmanned Aircraft Systems (UAS) in the United States

According to the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) and Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), the malicious use of UAS in the United States can take several forms, including kinetic attacks with payloads of firearms, explosives, or weapons of mass destruction and cyber-attacks against wireless devices or networks.

Congress has granted limited authorities to the Departments of Justice, Homeland Security, Defense and Energy, to counter the malicious, domestic use of UAS, while at once ensuring aviation safety and protecting civil liberties and privacy. But Congress has not yet granted such authorities to other federal departments or agencies, U.S. airports, state and local law enforcement, or critical infrastructure owners.

Therefore, the Committee directs that by no later than June 1, 2021, the Director of National Intelligence, in coordination with the Under Secretary for Intelligence and Analysis of the Department of Homeland Security and the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and as necessary, in consultation with other appropriate agencies of the Federal Government, State and local governments, and the private sector, shall submit to the Committee an intelligence assessment on the threat posed by the malicious use of UAS in the United States. At a minimum, such assessment shall:

1. Describe the national security and criminal threat actors seeking to use UAS in the United States, including their intentions, plans, and capabilities;
2. Characterize the number and type of UAS incidents in the United States from calendar year 2016 through 2020, differentiating those considered as malicious use;
3. Evaluate the probability, impact, and risk of the full range of malicious use categories including: kinetic attacks with payloads of firearms, explosives, or weapons of mass destruction, especially at mass gatherings or public events; illicit surveillance of sensitive facilities or personnel, whether government, military, or critical infrastructure; theft of intellectual property; cyber-attacks on unsecured wireless devices or networks; illegal trafficking or drugs or contraband; interference with defense, law enforcement, and intelligence activities; and the potential compromise of UAS supply chains by foreign adversaries; and
4. Assess current trends and patterns, projected evolution of the threat posed by the malicious use of UAS, and implications for policy makers.

Not later than June 1, 2021, the Secretary for Homeland Security and the Attorney General, in coordination with the Secretary of Transportation (acting through the Administrator for the Federal Aviation Administration) and the Director of National Intelligence, and as necessary, in consultation with other appropriate agencies of the Federal Government, State and local governments, and the private sector, shall submit to the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, the Committee on Homeland Security, the Committee on Transportation, and the House Committee on the Judiciary (for purposes of this direction, the “Committees”) a written report. Such report shall, at a minimum:

1. Describe the current Federal authorities, regulations, and policies authorizing departments and agencies to counter the malicious use of UAS;
2. Identify and explain any gaps in such authorities, regulations, and policies that impede the ability of the Federal Government, State and local governments, and critical infrastructure owners to counter the threat posed by the malicious use of UAS;
3. Evaluate whether current Federal law, regulations, and policies are sufficient to ensure the safe exercise of Counter UAS authorities in the National Air Space and adequate protections for civil liberties and privacy; and
4. Recommend options to remedy any such gaps or insufficiencies, including but not limited to necessary changes in law, regulations, or policies;
5. Propose what the Federal Government would need—with respect to authorities, regulations, policies, protections for civil liberties and privacy, and resources—to carry out feasibility studies and pilot programs enabling U.S. airports, state and local law enforcement, and critical infrastructure owners to counter the malicious use of UAS; and
6. Provide a comprehensive strategy on countering the malicious use of UAS in the United States, including as necessary, recommendations to update the U.S. National Strategy for Aviation Security or its supporting plans.

The intelligence assessment and report directed above shall be unclassified, to the maximum extent possible, though one or both may contain a non-public or classified annex, only if necessary to protect intelligence sources or methods and any other sensitive information protected from public disclosure by Federal law. Any classified annex shall be submitted to the Committees in an electronic form that is fully indexed and searchable.

The unclassified portions of the intelligence assessment and report further shall be made available on the public internet websites of the Department of Homeland Security, Department of Justice, Department of Transportation, Federal Aviation Administration, Federal Bureau of Investigation, and the Office of the Director of National Intelligence, not later than 30 days after submission to the Committee and in an electronic format that is fully indexed and searchable.

Improving Information Sharing and Training for State, Local, Tribal, and Territorial Law Enforcement on Matters of National Security and Homeland Security

The Committee recognizes the continued importance of improving information sharing and training on matters of national security and homeland security for State, local, Tribal, and Territorial law enforcement, consistent with protections for classified information as well as those for civil liberties and privacy.

Therefore, the Committee directs that the Secretary of Homeland Security, Attorney General, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and Director of National Intelligence, shall jointly submit to the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, the Committee on Homeland Security, and the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives (for purposes of this direction, the “Committees”) a written report regarding information sharing and related opportunities for each fiscal year. With respect to fiscal year 2021, such report shall be submitted by not later than June 1, 2021; a report as to the five following fiscal years also shall be submitted, on annual basis by no later than the first day of that fiscal year.

Each fiscal year’s report shall contain, at a minimum, a catalog that summarizes, relative to matters of national security and homeland security, opportunities for training, publications, programs, and services available to State, local, Tribal, and Territorial law enforcement from their respective departments, agencies, and all component agencies thereof.

Each fiscal year’s report shall be unclassified, to the maximum extent possible, but may be non-public or contain a classified annex only if necessary to protect classified and any other sensitive but unclassified information. Any such annex shall be submitted to the Committees in an electronic format that is fully indexed and searchable, and distributed to State, local, Tribal, and Territorial law enforcement, consistent with the protection of classified information.

Unclassified portions of the report shall be made available to State, local, Tribal, and Territorial law enforcement by posting it, in an electronic form that is fully indexed and searchable, on the websites of the Department of Homeland Security and Department of Justice; and on the Homeland Security Information Network and the Law Enforcement Enterprise Portal.

Use of Online Platforms to Further Acts of Targeted Violence Related to Terrorism, or, Advance Foreign Influence Campaigns

The Committee recognizes that threat actors, including terrorists and foreign governments, have leveraged online platforms to further acts of targeted violence or advance foreign influence campaigns against the United States or U.S. persons. Understanding precisely how this activity occurs and its implications are critical to developing legislation and policy to effectively counter it, consistent with the rule of law and the protection of civil rights, civil liberties, and privacy.

Therefore, the Committee directs as follows:

Not later than June 1, 2021, the Secretary of Homeland Security (acting through the Under Secretary for Science and Technology), in coordination with the Director of National Intelligence and the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in a manner consistent with their authorities shall—

1. Analyze existing research regarding previous acts of targeted violence, including domestic terrorism or international terrorism, and foreign influence campaigns;
2. Carry out research to better understand whether any connection exists between the use of online platforms, particularly platforms used for social media and social networking, and;
 - (A) Targeted violence, including domestic terrorism and international terrorism, that takes into consideration how the organization, structure, and presentation of information on an online platform contributes, or does not contribute, to acts of targeted violence, including domestic terrorism or international terrorism; and

(B) the effectiveness of foreign influence campaigns, taking into consideration how the organization, structure, and presentation of information on an online platform contributes, or does not contribute, to political or societal polarization or other societal outcomes; and

3. Develop voluntary approaches that could be adopted by owners and operators of online platforms to address research findings under paragraph (2), while preserving the individual civil rights, civil liberties, and privacy of users; and

4. Submit a written report to the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, the Committee on Homeland Security, and the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives (for purposes of this direction, the “Committees”) summarizing the research conducted and voluntary approaches developed; and setting forth any further related implications or recommendations.

Not later than June 1, 2021, the Director of National Intelligence, in coordination with the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Secretary of Homeland Security (acting through the Under Secretary for Intelligence and Analysis), shall provide a written intelligence assessment to Committees, regarding any use of online platforms to (1) further acts of targeted violence, including domestic terrorism and international terrorism; and (2) the use by foreign governments (or their proxies) or other nonstate actors to advance foreign influence campaigns, whether overt or covert, against the United States or U.S. persons. This assessment shall include—

1. An assessment of threat actors’ use of online platforms for purposes specified above, including their plans, intentions, and capabilities relative to such use;

2. An identification, comparison, analysis, and assessment of key trends, as well as threat actors’ tactics, targets, and procedures in the use of online platforms;

3. A discussion of whether (and if so, to what extent) foreign governments have sufficient laws and policies to counter threat actors’ use of online platforms, including best practices and gaps, consistent with the protection of civil rights, civil liberties, and privacy;

4. An assessment of the status and extent of any information sharing, intelligence partnerships, foreign police cooperation, and mutual legal assistance between the United States and foreign governments, on threat actors’ use of online platforms;

5. An assessment of any intelligence gaps and recommendations on remedying them; and

6. An opportunity analysis on countering threat actors’ use of online platforms.

In carrying out both the report and intelligence assessment directed above, the Secretary of Homeland Security, Director of National Intelligence, and the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, to the maximum extent practicable, shall consult with other appropriate agencies of the Federal Government, State, local, and Tribal, and Territorial governments, the private sector, and academic or non-government organizations.

The report and intelligence assessment directive above shall be—

1. Unclassified, to the maximum extent possible, but may contain a non-public or classified annex to protect sources or methods and any other information protected from public disclosure by Federal law;

2. With respect to the unclassified portions of the report and intelligence assessment, made available on the public internet websites of the Office of the Director of National Intelligence, Department of Homeland Security, and Federal Bureau of Investigation not later than 30 days after submission to the Committees; and in an electronic format that is fully indexed and searchable; and

3. With respect to a classified annex, submitted to the Committees in an electronic format that is fully indexed and searchable.

With respect to the report and intelligence assessment directed above, the term “online platform” means internet-based information services consisting of the storage and processing of information by and at the request of a content provider and the dissemination of such content to third parties; but shall exclude

1. Platforms that offer journalistic or editorial content (not including editorial decisions by online platforms to rank and organize third party content), unless they are owned or operated by a foreign government, or in such cases that an expected platform publishes content that is assessed to be the result of a foreign influence campaign; and

2. Online service providers at layers of the internet infrastructure other than the application layer, and cloud IT infrastructure service providers.

The term “targeted violence” means any incident of violence in which an attacker selects a particular target prior to the incident of violence so as to suggest an intent to inflict mass injury or death and may be an act of domestic terrorism or international terrorism, or an attack that otherwise lacks a clearly discernible political or ideological motivation, such as the June 12, 2016, nightclub mass shooting in Orlando, Florida, the October 1, 2017, attack on concert-goers at a music festival in Las Vegas, Nevada, and the August 3, 2019, mass shooting at a store in El Paso, Texas.

Pandemic Work Life Balance

The Committee takes a strong interest in ensuring the IC is adequately prepared for future public health or other crises—including with respect to initiatives intended to ensure the safety of the IC workforce. Since the start of the novel coronavirus pandemic (COVID-19), social distancing and work-from-home measures were unable to be applied throughout the IC due to numerous security requirements governing the usage of classified information. The Committee recognizes that the IC took quick, adaptive measures, such as staggered shifts for its employees and facility procedural changes to reduce airborne transmission.

As COVID-19 continues to cause extraordinary harms throughout the nation and the globe, the Committee is concerned that the IC may not be able to effectively accommodate the increased needs of its personnel outside of the workplace that arise as a result of this and future crises. Some of these needs include, for example, those relating to telework and transportation; emotional, behavioral, and mental health services; childcare; and ensuring benefit coverage for dependents and caregivers.

Therefore, the Committee directs the heads of elements of the Intelligence Community, jointly with the Director of National Intelligence and by no later than June 1, 2021, to submit to the Committee:

1. A written report on the impacts of COVID-19 on the IC workforce; and
2. A written long-term strategy to prepare for such impacts in future crises.

The Committee further directs that, not later than 30 days after submitting both reports to the Committee, the Director of National Intelligence shall brief their findings to the Committee.

Secured Access to State-of-the-Art Microelectronics

Continued U.S. leadership in microelectronics is necessary to maintain its advantage in artificial intelligence, and essential for its national security. The Intelligence Community must also maintain trusted access to commercially produced microelectronics to remain competitive, but it must do so in the context of an increasingly globalized and capital-intensive microelectronics supply chain over which it has limited influence.

The Committee believes that maintaining an edge in microelectronics will require the intelligence community to pursue a concerted, multipronged effort that will include partnering closely with the private sector to maintain a secure supply chain, pursuing research into new computing paradigms, and supporting U.S. commercial innovation in strategically important parts of the microelectronics sector. Furthermore, given the IC's role as a minority customer for microelectronics, the IC should carefully coordinate its efforts with the Department of Defense and other U.S. government agencies.

Therefore, the Committee directs the Director of National Intelligence to brief the congressional intelligence committees, by February 1, 2021, on:

1. The status and future plans of the Intelligence Community's efforts to assure secured access to microelectronics, both for standard commercial products and for niche Intelligence Community requirements;
2. Progress by the Intelligence Advanced Research Projects Activity towards the initiation of a full research and development program into next-generation microelectronics that will extend advancements beyond the end of Moore's law;
3. The feasibility of establishing an investment fund to pursue strategic investments in commercial companies innovating in areas relevant to the IC and to U.S. national security; and
4. The IC's efforts to coordinate with other U.S. government agencies on microelectronics efforts.

(d) ROLE OF DIRECTOR OF NATIONAL INTELLIGENCE IN TRANSFER AND REPROGRAMMING OF FUNDS.—(1)(A) No funds made available under the National Intelligence Program may be transferred or reprogrammed without the prior approval of the Director of National

In addition, the congressional intelligence committees shall be promptly notified of any transfer or reprogramming of funds made pursuant to this subsection in any case in which the transfer or reprogramming would not have otherwise required reprogramming notification under procedures in effect as of the date of the enactment of this subsection.

(e) TRANSFER OF PERSONNEL.—(1)(A) In addition to any other authorities available under law for such purposes, in the first twelve months after establishment of a new national intelligence center, the Director of National Intelligence, with the approval of the Director of the Office of Management and Budget and in consultation with the congressional committees of jurisdiction referred to in subparagraph (B), may transfer not more than 100 personnel authorized for elements of the intelligence community to such center.

(2)(A) The Director of National Intelligence, with the approval of the Director of the Office of Management and Budget and in accordance with procedures to be developed by the Director of National Intelligence and the heads of the departments and agencies concerned, may transfer personnel authorized for an element of the intelligence community to another such element for a period of not more than 2 years.

(B) A transfer of personnel may be made under this paragraph only if—

- (i) the personnel are being transferred to an activity that is a higher priority intelligence activity; and
 - (ii) the transfer supports an emergent need, improves program effectiveness, or increases efficiency.
- (C) The Director of National Intelligence shall promptly provide notice of any transfer of personnel made pursuant to this paragraph to—
- (i) the congressional intelligence committees;
 - (ii) in the case of the transfer of personnel to or from the Department of Defense, the Committees on Armed Services of the Senate and the House of Representatives; and

- (B) Except as provided in subparagraph (C), the Director of National Intelligence may use a full-time equivalent position authorized under subparagraph (A) only for the purpose of providing a temporary transfer of personnel made in accordance with paragraph (2) to an element of the intelligence community to enable such element to increase the total number of personnel authorized for such element, on a temporary basis—
- (i) during a period in which a permanent employee of such element is absent to participate in critical language training;
 - or
 - (ii) to accept a permanent employee of another element of the intelligence community to provide language-capable services.
- (C) Paragraph (2)(B) shall not apply with respect to a transfer of personnel made under subparagraph (B).
- (D) For each of the fiscal years 2010, 2011, and 2012, the Director of National Intelligence shall submit to the congressional intelligence committees an annual report on the use of authorities under this paragraph. Each such report shall include a description of—
- (i) the number of transfers of personnel made by the Director pursuant to subparagraph (B), disaggregated by each element of the intelligence community;
 - (ii) the critical language needs that were fulfilled or partially fulfilled through the use of such transfers; and
 - (iii) the cost to carry out subparagraph (B).
- (4) It is the sense of Congress that—
- (A) the nature of the national security threats facing the United States will continue to challenge the intelligence community to respond rapidly and flexibly to bring analytic resources to bear against emerging and unforeseen requirements;
 - (B) both the Office of the Director of National Intelligence and any analytic centers determined to be necessary should be fully and properly supported with appropriate levels of personnel resources and that the President's yearly budget requests adequately support those needs; and

(C) the President should utilize all legal and administrative discretion to ensure that the Director of National Intelligence and all other elements of the intelligence community have the necessary resources and procedures to respond promptly and effectively to emerging and unforeseen national security challenges.

(f) TASKING AND OTHER AUTHORITIES.—(1)(A) The Director of National Intelligence shall—

(i) establish objectives, priorities, and guidance for the intelligence community to ensure timely and effective collection, processing, analysis, and dissemination (including access by users to collected data consistent with applicable law and, as appropriate, the guidelines referred to in subsection (b) and analytic products generated by or within the intelligence community) of national intelligence;

(ii) determine requirements and priorities for, and manage and direct the tasking of, collection, analysis, production, and dissemination of national intelligence by elements of the intelligence community, including—

(I) approving requirements (including those requirements responding to needs provided by consumers) for collection and analysis; and

(II) resolving conflicts in collection requirements and in the tasking of national collection assets of the elements of the intelligence community; and

(iii) provide advisory tasking to intelligence elements of those agencies and departments not within the National Intelligence Program.

(B) The authority of the Director of National Intelligence under subparagraph (A) includes coordinating and supervising activities undertaken by elements of the intelligence community for the purpose of protecting the United States from any foreign interference in elections in the United States.

§ 119. Special access programs: congressional oversight

(a)(1) Not later than March 1 of each year, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the [defense committees] appropriate congressional committees a report on special access programs.

(2) Each such report shall set forth—

(A) the total amount requested for special access programs of the Department of Defense in the President's budget for the next fiscal year submitted under section 1105 of title 31; and

(B) for each program in that budget that is a special access program—

(i) a brief description of the program;

(ii) a brief discussion of the major milestones established for the program;

(iii) the actual cost of the program for each fiscal year during which the program has been conducted before the fiscal year during which that budget is submitted; and

(iv) the estimated total cost of the program and the estimated cost of the program for (I) the current fiscal year, (II) the fiscal year for which the budget is submitted, and (III) each of the four succeeding fiscal years during which the program is expected to be conducted.

(3) In the case of a report under paragraph (1) submitted in a year during which the President's budget for the next fiscal year, because of multiyear budgeting for the Department of Defense, does not include a full budget request for the Department of Defense, the report required by paragraph (1) shall set forth—

(A) the total amount already appropriated for the next fiscal year for special access programs of the Department of Defense and any additional amount requested in that budget for such programs for such fiscal year; and

(B) for each program of the Department of Defense that is a special access program, the information specified in paragraph (2)(B).

(b)(1) Not later than February 1 of each year, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the [defense committees] appropriate congressional committees a report that, with respect to each new special access program, provides—

(A) notice of the designation of the program as a special access program; and

(B) justification for such designation.

(2) A report under paragraph (1) with respect to a program shall include—

(A) the current estimate of the total program cost for the program; and

(B) an identification of existing programs or technologies that are similar to the technology, or that have a mission similar to the mission, of the program that is the subject of the notice.

(3) In this subsection, the term "new special access program" means a special access program that has not previously been covered in a notice and justification under this subsection.

(c)(1) Whenever a change in the classification of a special access program of the Department of Defense is planned to be made or whenever classified information concerning a special access program of the Department of Defense is to be declassified and made public, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the [defense committees] appropriate congressional committees a report containing a description of the proposed change, the reasons for the proposed change, and notice of any public announcement planned to be made with respect to the proposed change.

(2) Except as provided in paragraph (3), any report referred to in paragraph (1) shall be submitted not less than 14 days before the date on which the proposed change or public announcement is to occur.

(3) If the Secretary determines that because of exceptional circumstances the requirement of paragraph (2) cannot be met with respect to a proposed change or public announcement concerning a special access program of the Department of Defense, the Secretary may submit the report required by paragraph (1) regarding the proposed change or public announcement at any time before the proposed change or public announcement is made and shall include in the report an explanation of the exceptional circumstances.

(d) Whenever there is a modification or termination of the policy and criteria used for designating a program of the Department of Defense as a special access program, the Secretary of Defense shall promptly notify the [defense committees] appropriate congressional committees of such modification or termination. Any such notification shall contain the reasons for the modification or termination and, in the case of a modification, the provisions of the policy as modified.

(e)(1) The Secretary of Defense may waive any requirement under subsection (a), (b), or (c) that certain information be included in a report under that subsection if the Secretary determines that inclusion of that information in the report would adversely affect the national security. Any such waiver shall be made on a case-by-case basis.

(2) If the Secretary exercises the authority provided under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall provide the information described in that subsection with respect to the special access program concerned, and the justification for the waiver, jointly to the chairman and ranking minority member of each of the [defense committees] appropriate congressional committees.

ENFORCEMENT

SEC. 309. (a)(1) Any person who believes a violation of this Act or of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 has occurred, may file a complaint with the Commission. Such complaint shall be in writing, signed and sworn to by the person filing such complaint, shall be notarized, and shall be made under penalty of perjury and subject to the provisions of section 1001 of title 18, United States Code. Within 5 days after receipt of a complaint, the Commission shall notify, in writing, any person alleged in the complaint to have committed such a violation. Before the Commission conducts any vote on the complaint, other than a vote to dismiss, any person so notified shall have the opportunity to demonstrate, in writing, to the Commission within 15 days after notification that no action should be taken against such person on the basis of the complaint. The Commission may not conduct any investigation or take any other action under this section solely on the basis of a complaint of a person whose identity is not disclosed to the Commission.

(2) If the Commission, upon receiving a complaint under paragraph (1) or on the basis of information ascertained in the normal course of carrying out its supervisory responsibilities, determines, by an affirmative vote of 4 of its members, that it has reason to believe that a person has committed, or is about to commit, a violation of this Act or chapter 95 or chapter 96 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, the Commission shall, through its chairman or vice chairman, notify the person of the alleged violation. Such notification shall set forth the factual basis for such alleged violation. The Commission shall make an investigation of such alleged violation, which may include a field investigation or audit, in accordance with the provisions of this section.

(3) The general counsel of the Commission shall notify the respondent of any recommendation to the Commission by the general counsel to proceed to a vote on probable cause pursuant to paragraph (4)(A)(i). With such notification, the general counsel shall include a brief stating the position of the general counsel on the legal and factual issues of the case. Within 15 days of receipt of such brief, respondent may submit a brief stating the position of such respondent on the legal and factual issues of the case, and replying to the brief of general counsel. Such briefs shall be filed with the Secretary of the Commission and shall be considered by the Commission before proceeding under paragraph (4).

(4)(A)(i) Except as provided in clauses (ii) and subparagraph (C), if the Commission determines, by an affirmative vote of 4 of its members, that there is probable cause to believe that any person has committed, or is about to commit, a violation of this Act or of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, the Commission shall attempt, for a period of at least 30 days, to correct or prevent such violation by informal methods of conference, conciliation, and persuasion, and to enter into a conciliation agreement with any person involved. Such attempt by the Commission to correct or prevent such violation may continue for a period of not more than 90 days. The Commission may not enter into a conciliation agreement under this clause except pursuant to an affirmative vote of 4 of its members. A conciliation agreement, unless violated, is a complete bar to any further action by the Commission, including the bringing of a civil proceeding under paragraph (6)(A).

(ii) If any determination of the Commission under clause (i) occurs during the 45-day period immediately preceding any election, then the Commission shall attempt, for a period of at least 15 days, to correct or prevent the violation involved by the methods specified in clause (i).

(B)(i) No action by the Commission or any person, and no information derived, in connection with any conciliation attempt by the Commission under subparagraph (A) may be made public by the Commission without the written consent of the respondent and the Commission.

(ii) If a conciliation agreement is agreed upon by the Commission and the respondent, the Commission shall make public any conciliation agreement signed by both the Commission and the respondent. If the Commission makes a determination that a person has not violated this Act or chapter 95 or chapter 96 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, the Commission shall make public such determination.

(C)(i) Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), in the case of a violation of a qualified disclosure requirement, the Commission may—

(I) find that a person committed such a violation on the basis of information obtained pursuant to the procedures described in paragraphs (1) and (2); and

(II) based on such finding, require the person to pay a civil money penalty in an amount determined, for violations of each qualified disclosure requirement, under a schedule of penalties which is established and published by the Commission and which takes into account the amount of the violation involved, the existence of previous violations by the person, and such other factors as the Commission considers appropriate.

(ii) The Commission may not make any determination adverse to a person under clause (i) until the person has been given written notice and an opportunity to be heard before the Commission.

(iii) Any person against whom an adverse determination is made under this subparagraph may obtain a review of such determination in the district court of the United States for the district in which the person resides, or transacts business, by filing in such court (prior to the expiration of the 30-day period which begins on the date the person receives notification of the determination) a written petition requesting that the determination be modified or set aside.

(iv) In this subparagraph, the term “qualified disclosure requirement” means any requirement of—

(I) subsections (a), (c), (e), (f), (g), or (i) of section 304; or

(II) section 305.

(v) This subparagraph shall apply with respect to violations that relate to reporting periods that begin on or after January 1, 2000, and that end on or before December 31, 2023.

(5)(A) If the Commission believes that a violation of this Act or of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 has been committed, a conciliation agreement entered into by the Commission under paragraph (4)(A) may include a requirement that the person involved in such conciliation agreement shall pay a civil penalty which does not exceed the greater of $5,000 or an amount equal to any contribution or expenditure involved in such violation.

(B) If the Commission believes that a knowing and willful violation of this Act or of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 has been committed, a conciliation agreement entered into by the Commission under paragraph (4)(A) may require that the person involved in such conciliation agreement shall pay a civil penalty which does not exceed the greater of $10,000 or an amount equal to 200 percent of any contribution or expenditure involved in such violation (or, in the case of a violation of section 320, which is not less than 300 percent of the amount involved in the violation and is not more than the greater of $50,000 or 1,000 percent of the amount involved in the violation).

(C) If the Commission by an affirmative vote of 4 of its members, determined that there is probable cause to believe that a knowing and willful violation of this Act which is subject to subsection (d), or a knowing and willful violation of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, has occurred or is about to occur, it may refer such apparent violation to the Attorney General of the United States without regard to any limitations set forth in paragraph (4)(A).

(D) In any case in which a person has entered into a conciliation agreement with the Commission under paragraph (4)(A), the Commission may institute a civil action for relief under paragraph (6)(A) if it believes that the person has violated any provision of such conciliation agreement. For the Commission to obtain relief in any civil action, the Commission need only establish that the person has violated, in whole or in part, any requirement of such conciliation agreement.

(6)(A) If the Commission is unable to correct or prevent any violation of this Act or of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, by the methods specified in paragraph (4), the Commission may, upon an affirmative vote of 4 of its members, institute a civil action for relief, including a permanent or temporary injunction, restraining order, or any other appropriate order (including an order for a civil penalty which does not exceed the greater of $5,000 or an amount equal to any contribution or expenditure involved in such violation) in the district court of the United States for the district in which the person against whom such action is brought is found, resides, or transacts business.

(B) In any civil action instituted by the Commission under subparagraph (A), the court may grant a permanent or temporary injunction, restraining order, or other order, including a civil penalty which does not exceed the greater of $5,000 or an amount equal to any contribution or expenditure involved in such violation, upon a proper showing that the person involved has committed, or is about to commit (if the relief sought is a permanent or temporary injunction or a restraining order), a violation of this Act or chapter 95 or chapter 96 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

(C) In any civil action for relief instituted by the Commission under subparagraph (A), if the court determines that the Commission has established that the person involved in such civil action has committed a knowing and willful violation of this Act or of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, the court may impose a civil penalty which does not exceed the greater of $10,000 or an amount equal to 200 percent of any contribution or expenditure involved in such violation (or, in the case of a violation of section 320, which is not less than 300 percent of the amount involved in the violation and is not more than the greater of $50,000 or 1,000 percent of the amount involved in the violation).

(7) In any action brought under paragraph (5) or (6), subpoenas for witnesses who are required to attend a United States district court may run into any other district.

(8)(A) Any party aggrieved by an order to the Commission dismissing a complaint filed by such party under paragraph (1), or by a failure of the Commission to act on such complaint during the 120-day period beginning on the date the complaint is filed, may file a petition with the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

(B) Any petition under subparagraph (A) shall be filed, in the case of a dismissal of a complaint by the Commission, within 60 days after the date of the dismissal.

(C) In any proceeding under this paragraph the court may declare that the dismissal of the complaint or the failure to act is contrary to law, and may direct the Commission to conform with such declaration within 30 days, failing which the complainant may bring, in the name of such complainant, a civil action to remedy the violation involved in the original complaint.

(9) Any judgment of a district court under this subsection may be appealed to the court of appeals, and the judgment of the court of appeals affirming or setting aside, in whole or in part, any such order of the district court shall be final, subject to review by the Supreme Court of the United States upon certiorari or certification as provided in section 1254 of title 28, United States Code.

(11) If the Commission determines after an investigation that any person has violated an order of the court entered in a proceeding brought under paragraph (6), it may petition the court for an order to hold such person in civil contempt, but if it believes the violation to be knowing and willful it may petition the court for an order to hold such person in criminal contempt.

(12)(A) Any notification or investigation made under this section shall not be made public by the Commission or by any person without the written consent of the person receiving such notification or the person with respect to whom such investigation is made.

(B) Any member or employee of the Commission, or any other person, who violates the provisions of subparagraph (A) shall be fined not more than $2,000. Any such member, employee, or other person who knowingly and willfully violates the provisions of subparagraph (A) shall be fined not more than $5,000.

(b) Before taking any action under subsection (a) against any person who has failed to file a report required under section 304(a)(2)(A)(iii) for the calendar quarter immediately preceding the election involved, or in accordance with section 304(a)(2)(A)(i), the Commission shall notify the person of such failure to file the required reports. If a satisfactory response is not received within 4 business days after the date of notification, the Commission shall, pursuant to section 311(a)(7), publish before the election the name of the person and the report or reports such person has failed to file.

(c) Whenever the Commission refers an apparent violation to the Attorney General, the Attorney General shall report to the Commission any action taken by the Attorney General regarding the apparent violation. Each report shall be transmitted within 60 days after the date the Commission refers an apparent violation, and every 30 days thereafter until the final disposition of the apparent violation.

(d)(1)(A) Any person who knowingly and willfully commits a violation of any provision of this Act which involves the making, receiving, or reporting of any contribution, donation, or expenditure—

(i) aggregating $25,000 or more during a calendar year shall be fined under title 18, United States Code, or imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both; or

(ii) aggregating $2,000 or more (but less than $25,000) during a calendar year shall be fined under such title, or imprisoned for not more than 1 year, or both.

(B) In the case of a knowing and willful violation of section 316(b)(3), the penalties set forth in this subsection shall apply to a violation involving an amount aggregating $250 or more during a calendar year. Such violation of section 316(b)(3) may incorporate a violation of section 317(b), 320, or 321.

(C) In the case of a knowing and willful violation of section 322, the penalties set forth in this subsection shall apply without regard to whether the making, receiving, or reporting of a contribution or expenditure of $1,000 or more is involved.

(D) Any person who knowingly and willfully commits a violation of section 320 involving an amount aggregating more than $10,000 during a calendar year shall be—

(i) imprisoned for not more than 2 years if the amount is less than $25,000 (and subject to imprisonment under subparagraph (A) if the amount is $25,000 or more);

(ii) fined not less than 300 percent of the amount involved in the violation and not more than the greater of—

(I) $50,000; or

(II) 1,000 percent of the amount involved in the violation; or

(iii) both imprisoned under clause (i) and fined under clause (ii).

(E) Any person who knowingly and willfully commits a violation of subsection (j) or (b)(9) of section 304 or section 302(j) shall be fined not more than $500,000, imprisoned not more than 5 years, or both.

(F) Any person who knowingly and willfully conceals or destroys any materials relating to a reportable foreign contact (as defined in section 304(j)) shall be fined not more than $1,000,000, imprisoned not more than 5 years, or both.

(G)(i) Any person who knowingly and willfully commits a violation of section 319 which involves a foreign national which is a government of a foreign country or a foreign political party, or which involves a thing of value consisting of the provision of opposition research, polling, or other non-public information relating to a candidate for election for a Federal, State, or local office for the purpose of influencing the election, shall be fined under title 18, United States Code, or imprisoned for not more than 5 years, or both.

(ii) In clause (i), each of the terms “government of a foreign country” and “foreign political party” has the meaning given such term in section 1 of the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938, as Amended (22 U.S.C. 611).

(2) In any criminal action brought for a violation of any provision of this Act or of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, any defendant may evidence their lack of knowledge or intent to commit the alleged violation by introducing as evidence a conciliation agreement entered into between the defendant and the Commission under subsection (a)(4)(A) which specifically deals with the act or failure to act constituting such violation and which is still in effect.

(3) In any criminal action brought for a violation of any provision of this Act or of chapter 95 or chapter 96 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, the court before which such action is brought shall take into account, in weighing the seriousness of the violation and in considering the appropriateness of the penalty to be imposed if the defendant is found guilty, whether—

(A) the specific act or failure to act which constitutes the violation for which the action was brought is the subject of a conciliation agreement entered into between the defendant and the Commission under subparagraph (a)(4)(A);

MINORITY VIEWS

BACKGROUND AND OVERVIEW

Despite the partisanship and impropriety of the Majority's actions throughout this Congress, the Minority sought in good faith, and consistent with past practices, to produce a bipartisan Intelligence Authorization Act (IAA).

In the past, annex provisions impacting intelligence activities and operations were based on documented facts. General principles of legislative drafting require that facts be established before legislation is produced. This is particularly true in the case of the IAA and its annex, which authorize some of the most sensitive programs protecting the American people. Facts are paramount and politics should play no role. However, the annex accompanying H.R. 7856, and the bill itself, repeatedly use undocumented claims, as well as partisan politics, to justify funding profile changes or restrictions on intelligence activities. The Minority strongly objects to this approach, which is geared toward achieving purely political outcomes.

Past practices at the Intelligence Committee also included a commitment to producing a bill without provisions designed for the political advantage of either party. The Majority was fully informed well in advance of the markup that the Minority objected to several provisions, particularly those in Titles V and VII, which are clear political hit jobs aimed at President Trump. The Majority even agreed that certain provisions were targeted at the Administration. The Minority nevertheless attempted, in good faith, to reach a bipartisan compromise on these provisions. The Majority walked away from the negotiations.

The Chairman claimed during the pre-markup "Strawman" meeting that he wanted to work toward a bipartisan agreement prior to markup. Actions, however, speak louder than words. The Chairman did not reengage with the Minority after that meeting. In fact, the Majority unilaterally, and without notice, stripped the bill and annex of previously agreed-upon compromises, including Republican Member priorities. Furthermore, the Majority made many of the explicitly political provisions mentioned above even more blatantly political and, less than 48 hours before markup, stacked the bill with political poison pills. Those highly partisan and objectionable provisions are described in detail below.

H.R. 7856 is the first partisan IAA voted out of the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence (HPSCI) in a decade.¹ At markup, the Minority offered an amendment to strike 39 provisions from the legislative text to remove provisions that the Minority objected to for a variety of reasons. The sheer volume of objectionable provisions demonstrates how deeply partisan this legislation is.

The Minority's amendment proposed striking all provisions that presented an unresolved policy dispute in addition to striking the provisions which the Minority disagreed with due to their partisan nature and purpose.

The Minority's amendment proposed striking numerous provisions that were not fully vetted with the Minority. Some of these provisions were added mere days before markup, leaving the Minority unable to determine whether legislation was the most appropriate way to resolve a perceived, though sometimes unapparent, policy concern. The amendment also proposed striking certain provisions which were modified during pre-markup negotiations, only to have those previously-agreed upon modifications removed when the Majority ended negotiations and produced a partisan bill.

The Minority's amendment proposed striking certain reporting requirements and limitations placed on funds. There is a concerning trend by Committee Democrats to require that Intelligence Community (IC) reports be produced in an unclassified form and publicly released. On many topics, the Minority believes this is inappropriate, since it provides our foreign adversaries the opportunity to understand and exploit U.S. intelligence capabilities and contingencies. The Minority further believes that the limitations placed on certain IC activities by this bill present unknown risks to national security, to continuing U.S. operations, and to the safety of U.S. personnel.

Out of an abundance of caution, the Minority believes striking such provisions to be the appropriate course of action.

THE REPUBLICAN MINORITY'S SPECIFIC OBJECTIONS

The Minority's amendment proposed striking section 303, which requires the IC to provide public notice on or before the date that an IC element provides support for a Federal, State, local, or Tribal government response to civil disobedience or domestic civil disturbances. During negotiations, the Minority objected that this provision, as written, would essentially require public notice as soon as IC assets were lawfully deployed. This would create a force protection issue since violent criminals, including members of violent anarchist groups, would be aware of the presence of IC assets in real time. The Minority fails to understand the rationale for this provision, unless the Majority's desire is to somehow "even the odds" in confrontations between law enforcement and criminals. Accordingly, the Minority requested that the public notification requirement contained in this provision be removed, but that the quarterly congressional notification requirement be preserved. That would advance legitimate congressional oversight of domestic IC activities, while removing the likelihood of force protection issues. This Majority rejected that reasonable request.

The amendment proposed striking section 304. Section 304 was an unvetted, last minute addition to the IAA clearly included to make a political statement about actions taken by President Trump and his Administration. The Minority cannot support its inclusion in the bill.

The amendment also proposed striking section 306, which raises the threshold for congressional notification of new IC facility construction from $1 million to $2 million. The Minority believes that the Office of the Director of National Intelligence (ODNI) has not been a responsible steward of taxpayer funds in prior facility construction projects, a conclusion which is supported by multiple independent audits by the Inspector General of the Intelligence Community and the Government Accountability Office.

The amendment proposed striking section 309 which was also a last minute, unvetted addition to the IAA. Because the Minority is not aware of the impetus of the provision, the policy gaps it supposedly addresses, and whether the provision is the most appropriate way to approach the problem, we cannot support its inclusion in the bill.

The amendment proposed striking section 402. The Minority would have supported this provision if the Majority had made a minor modification to allow the Ombudsman position to be filled by either a current or former Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) official. This modification was strongly requested by the CIA and it did not appear that the Majority had an objective reason to deny the request.

The amendment also proposed striking section 408, which would remove the existing sunset on the Climate Security Advisory Council and grant additional and expansive authorities to ODNI. The Minority objected to this approach when it was attempted in Fiscal Year 2020. The Majority inserted this section into the bill days before markup, with no warning, fully aware of the Minority's position on such a provision. As further evidence of the Minority's good faith effort to reach an agreement, we did not object to section 903, which expands the existing reporting requirement for the Council. This reporting requirement allowed for a measured approach to determine if an intelligence gap related to climate security existed, and if so, whether the solution would be to create an entire new Center. That reporting requirement, and the sunset currently in law, had the bipartisan support of the Committee, while this permanent approach does not. The Majority knew that the insertion of this section would be a political poison pill, and nevertheless chose to include it.

The amendment proposed striking section 501, which was included in this bill because the Majority disagreed with President Trump's exercise of his constitutional authority to fire an executive branch official. In a good faith attempt to reach a non-politicized agreement, the Minority requested striking the limitation on the President's authority while preserving the requirement that when an Inspector General is fired, his or her office notify Congress of all pending complaints, investigations, and other matters the Inspector General was working on. This modification would, in an apolitical manner, act as a check on future Presidents' firing of Inspectors General for improper reasons by enhancing opportunities for congressional oversight. The Majority rejected this reasonable request.

The amendment proposed striking section 502 for similar reasons. The Majority's objective in this provision is to limit President Trump's authority—and that of any future President—to name the person he/she sees fit as an Acting Inspector General. The Minority believes that the Majority included this provision not only because of their disdain for President Trump, but also because the Majority wants unelected Executive branch officials, not the President, to run the Executive branch. Despite the Majority's bad faith efforts, the Minority tried, in good faith, to meet halfway on this provision by suggesting modifying this provision to be a "sense of Congress." Including a "sense of Congress" that someone appointed to the position of Acting Inspector General should be qualified for that position would make clear what Congress expects of the Executive branch. The Majority rejected that reasonable offer.

The amendment proposed striking sections 504 and 506, which were only included in this bill as a continuation of the Majority's hyper-partisan impeachment of President Trump. Both provisions give IC whistleblowers special statutory protections—not enjoyed by any other whistleblowers—drafted specifically to criminalize otherwise lawful actions taken by the Trump Administration. Section 504 is nothing less than an ex post facto indictment of President Trump and his Administration. Section 506 is an attempt to rectify the false claims made by the Majority in their hyper-partisan impeachment—namely, that the whistleblower had a "statutory right" to anonymity. This provision would impose legal liability for "a knowing and willful or negligent disclosure" of a whistleblower's identity or the fact of the existence of a whistleblower complaint and would provide whistleblowers with a federal private right of action against their colleagues. Giving a federal employee a private right of action against a fellow employee for the "negligent," meaning inadvertent, disclosure of a whistleblower's identity or the existence of a complaint, regardless of whether that employee even knew about the complaint, is profoundly irresponsible.

The amendment proposed striking section 601. This provision contains a broad and complicated grant of new authorities to an office that currently exists within ODNI. The Minority questioned what the Majority's goals for this provision were, and whether this approach was reasonable in light of those goals. The Minority believes that prior failures of a similar type at ODNI caution against a large reorganization of substantive responsibilities which would impact the entire IC without proper due diligence. The Majority had agreed to work on modifying this provision to come to a compromise; unfortunately, the Majority walked away from negotiations and section 601 of H.R. 7856 does not contain the Minority's input.

The amendment also proposed striking section 603, which grants authority for additional outreach and education for the arts to all IC elements. Numerous IC elements have demonstrated a need for authorities to conduct outreach and education for science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM). Only CIA, however, has documented a need for this authority to be applied to the arts due to the agency's unique mission requirements. As such, the Minority continues to support STEM education and outreach authorities to all IC elements, but only supports expanding such authorities for arts-related education and outreach to CIA. The Minority believes it is irresponsible to grant or rescind authorities without understanding the impact of doing so. If additional IC elements were to demonstrate to the Committee the need for these authorities related to the arts, the Minority would reconsider.

The Minority's amendment proposed striking all provisions contained in Title VII, which are written as amendments to the Federal Election Campaign Act and are therefore outside this Committee's jurisdiction. The Majority was fully aware that the Minority would not support a bill with Title VII included. However, when the Majority determined, days before the markup, that they would end the bipartisan negotiations and produce a partisan bill, they added even more political poison pills to Title VII that are clearly meant to target President Trump.

Section 701 would require employees, officials, and agents for a presidential campaign, as well as the candidate and his or her immediate family, to report certain foreign contacts to the Federal Election Commission (so the information will be made public) and to the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). Section 701 also requires that the FBI provide notice of receipt of these foreign contact reports to the campaign and to this Committee. The Minority strongly objects to this provision. This Committee was established to oversee the conduct of intelligence and intelligence-related activities of the U.S. government, which a presidential campaign is clearly not part of. The Majority's attempt to insert this Committee into the oversight of presidential campaigns—and to give it oversight of the Federal Election Commission—is inappropriate and constitutes a blatant partisan swipe at President Trump and his family. In requiring that most foreign contacts—even those of a relatively benign or unserious nature—be reported to the Committee that conducted the first partisan impeachment in American history, this provision would lead to more, not fewer, “scandals” based on political differences rather than facts. This is because the Minority believes that this information, even if classified, will nevertheless find its way from this Committee into the media.

Section 702 mandates the creation of a reporting structure for the new requirements outlined in section 701. The Minority is concerned about the potential for abuse by the FBI. Over the past four years, we have learned from the DOJ IG, the FISA Court, and many other sources how the FBI abused its counterintelligence authorities to perpetuate investigations into the Trump campaign. This new foreign contact reporting scheme will undoubtedly lead to more counterintelligence investigations into presidential campaigns. Given the experience with the Crossfire Hurricane investigation, Congress has no reason to trust that the FBI will not improperly surveil the campaign staffers who report foreign contacts.

Section 703 makes the knowing and willful violation of the reporting requirement a felony with a maximum fine of $500,000, and the knowing and willful concealment or destruction of materials relating to a reportable foreign contact a felony with a maximum fine of $1,000,000. These outrageous fines are twice and four-times, respectively, more than the penalty for the knowing and willful disclosure of classified information,² or the penalty for killing a member of Congress,³ or the penalty for the development of a biological weapon,⁴ or the penalty for harboring or concealing spies.⁵ The Minority believes that the Majority is using the size of the criminal penalties in section 703 to make a political statement, which is an interesting approach given the Majority's long-stated concerns with overcriminalization in this country.

Section 704 requires an annual report from the FBI to this Committee detailing the foreign contact notifications they received from campaigns and any investigative actions taken as a result. The Minority believes this promotes the ongoing politicization of intelligence, and worries about the potential damage to any ongoing FBI counterintelligence investigations, as well as U.S. national security, if information from this annual report were to leak to the press. The structure of this provision suggests its real intent is to ensure information is leaked for political purposes.

Section 711 expands the definition of a "thing of value" to include "the provision of opposition research, polling, or other non-public information relating to a candidate . . . for the purpose of influencing the election, regardless of whether such . . . has monetary value." The Majority has made no attempt to hide that this provision was written in direct response to Special Counsel Robert Mueller's decision not to charge Donald Trump Jr. with a campaign finance violation. The provision also makes it a crime for a person to "directly or indirectly" receive an "express or implied promise" of such a contribution. The Minority wonders how an individual "indirectly" receives an "implied promise," and further believes that this provision is overly broad, deeply political, clearly targeting President Trump and his family, and has no relation to the business of this Committee.

The amendment proposed striking section 801, which severely limits the availability of funds for certain ongoing IC activities until an unclassified version of a report on the death of Jamal Khashoggi is provided to the Committee. This report has already been provided to the Committee in classified form, and the IC has warned that any further declassification of the information contained in the report could compromise sources and methods. Therefore, the Majority's language seeks to force the IC to either release an almost entirely redacted report, which achieves nothing in the way of transparency, or to compromise national security by declassifying the report. The Minority therefore cannot support this provision.

The amendment proposed striking section 802, which limits the availability of funds related to certain air strikes in Yemen. As initially drafted, the potential impact of this limitation was unclear to the Minority. A last-minute modification to the language provoked further questions about the language, as the need for this modification was not explained to the Minority. Due to the potentially unknown impacts to national security, the Minority supports removing this provision from the bill.

The reporting requirements contained in sections 803, 804, 805, 807, and 822 were all last-minute additions to the IAA after the Majority walked away from negotiations. Given that these provisions were unvetted with the Minority, we would strike these provisions.

Finally, the reporting requirements contained in sections 811, 812, 813, 821, 906, 908, and 911 are not necessarily on topics or issues with which the Minority disagrees. However, as previously stated, there is a concerning trend of mandating that reports drafted by the IC be produced in an unclassified form and publicly released. On many topics, the Minority believes this is an inappropriate step for the IC to take, since it provides our foreign adversaries the opportunity to understand and exploit U.S. intelligence capabilities and contingencies.

In addition to the unclassified amendment described above, the Minority offered three en bloc amendments to the classified annex to strike 25 provisions. While we are unable to debate the merits of these provisions publicly, the bases for our opposition to these 25 classified provisions include: disagreements over the premise of the language—i.e., the factual basis asserted remains in dispute; disagreements over limitations imposed on IC elements which appear politically motivated; disagreements over specific spending cuts which will impact the national security of the United States as well as the safety of our military forces overseas; disagreements over the imposition of punitive spending controls to restrict spending until certain conditions—which are themselves objectionable—are met; and disagreements over the merits of provisions which seek to micromanage or impose unnecessary requirements on the IC—particularly in light of tenuous and largely anecdotal justifications.

If the amendments described herein had been approved, the Minority indicated we would fully support the resulting legislation. Unfortunately, the Majority rejected all but one amendment to the classified annex.

Republican Members cannot support an Intelligence Authorization Act that exploits the IC for partisan political purposes, as the Majority has done with H.R. 7856. We deeply regret that the Majority has chosen to act in this manner.

It did not have to be this way. It is this way because the Majority has weaponized intelligence to serve manifestly political goals. It is this way because the Majority has failed in their duty to this Committee, to this Congress, and to the American people.

The Republican Minority urges our colleagues to vigorously oppose H.R. 7856.

Sincerely,

DEVIN NUNES,
Ranking Member.
