H.R. 6868 would authorize the Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency (CISA) to award grants to cyber education and training programs. The bill also would require the agency to report to the Congress on the effectiveness of its efforts.

CISA is already providing the grants that would be authorized under H.R. 6868 through the Cybersecurity Education and Training Assistance Program; thus, the bill would codify those responsibilities and would not impose any new grant requirements on the agency.

The agency could expand a report provided under current law to satisfy the new reporting requirement in the bill. CBO estimates that doing so would cost less than $500,000 over the 2022-2026 period; such spending would be subject to the availability of appropriated funds.

The CBO staff contact for this estimate is Aldo Prospero. The estimate was reviewed by Leo Lex, Deputy Director of Budget Analysis.
